WALL-STREET.

Still Another Day of Excitement Among the Brokers.

Fruitless Effort at Settlement by the Committee of Twenty.

Interference on the Part of the Courts.

The Gold Exchange Bank in the Hands of a Receiver.

Injunction Against the Gold Board Issued by Judge Cardoso.

Another Panic in the Stock Market.

Failure of Several Prominent Brokers.

Commodore Vanderbilt on the Scene—Millions of Dollars Employed to Stem the Tide—Evening Scenes at the Fifth-Avenue Hotel—Effect Upon Mercantile Business—General Stagnation of Trade—Prospects of To-day.

The events of yesterday in financial circles may be summed up, before proceeding to tell the story of the day, in the following terms: The day opened bright and glorious as the Autumnal sun which gave it light. There were clouds to mar its brightness, it was true, but it was hoped—confidently hoped—that these clouds would be dissipated as the day waxed older, and that before long the bright sunshine would be equaled almost by the realization of the bright expectations of that class of the community whose very life and business existence depended upon the success of the measures which had been inaugurated on the day before.

Everybody on Tuesday evening seemed to retire from the scene in an easier frame of mind, with the knowledge that the Gold Exchange Committee of twenty would accomplish something during the silent vigils of the night which would bring order out of chaos, and once more set the wheels of business in motion. Confidence was expressed late on Tuesday in the ability of the Committee to accomplish this desirable result, and those who had left the scene of the day's labors and trials almost despairing, looked forward with anxiety to the morrow's revelations in the fond hope that some course would be decided upon which would relieve the painful suspense which then—Tuesday night—rested upon everything.

Gold brokers had learned to wait. They had waited, though their business suffered cruelly, since Friday night, and were prepared to wait longer—days if necessary—for the proper solution of the difficulty. But stock brokers became impatient. Their business was almost stagnant, and, what was worse, money was so tight that they could not hope to carry the stocks necessary for the business in which they were engaged. Money they must have, even if they paid a ruinous rate of interest for it, and money they could not get if the deadlock in the Gold Board continued; for those who had money to lend would not loan it upon stocks, which might fall five, ten or even twenty per cent. before noon of the next day.

Thus it was that every eye was turned to the operations of the Committee of twenty of the Gold Exchange. The first news in the morning was that the Committee had succeeded, almost beyond their most sanguine anticipations, in getting over two hundred of the two hundred and more statements of dealers. Among them were mentioned the names of some whom it was feared would prove recalcitrant, and so much having been gained, it was thought that the Committee would be enabled to complete their labors speedily and satisfactorily. Members of the Committee were flying about from broker to broker, working like beavers, in order to hurry up the dilatory and urge onward the reluctant.

The Committee were in session in the Open Board of Brokers with piles of documents before them and able accountants to assist them, and in response to questions as to their progress, would say, "Only give us a little time, gentlemen, and we will settle the business of Friday; and what is more, we will arrange it to your satisfaction." The querists went away satisfied, and communicated the good news to their neighbors. The Committee of twenty were glorified beyond measure for the herculean efforts they were making, and everybody seemed to consider that they would be entitled to the highest meed of praise, should they succeed in accomplishing the grand object they had undertaken.

Brokers left the Committee Room and proceeded to their offices feeling a great deal better than when they had entered upon the street early in the morning. They seemed to feel as if all rested upon the Committee of twenty, and their proceedings were watched with the greatest care during the day.

So the prospect was bright in the morning. As noon approached affairs grew gloomy. The Gold Exchange Bank was placed in the hands of a receiver—Mr. AUGUSTUS E. HALL, of the firm of BROWN, HALL & VANDERPOEL. The proceedings of the Committee of twenty were interrupted by a failure to procure statements from SMITH, GOULD & MARTIN, but it was hoped that this difficulty would be surmounted. Money was still tight, and almost every moment growing tighter. Stocks could not be held or carried except by parties abundantly supplied with means. And at last came the mutterings of the impending storm. In the Stock Exchange, at the first call, four houses were reported failed, viz.: FULLER, TREAT & COX, JULIAN & Co., C. A. MEIGS & SON, and C. W. KEEP. Their stocks were sold out, under the rule, in the Open Board. This clinched matters. The crash followed. Everybody, seemingly, rushed to sell, and the market was flooded with securities. Down went Central. From 150½, at which price it closed on Tuesday night, it went down to 146¼. As went Central, so followed the rest of the stocks on the list, and down came everything. A panic, widespread, at once seized upon the brokers. The crowd in the Exchange and upon the street was enormous. Brokers rushed hither and thither in a state of frantic excitement. No one knew to whom to look for aid, for each felt that his neighbor and friend were in a similar predicament with himself.

The rumor was circulated that Commodore VANDERBILT was on the ground—not in reality circulating among the bulls and bears, directing by movement and gesture and voice the operations of his agents, but rested quietly, as a man could be under such circumstances, by some telegraphic instrument, directing his willing servants how best to do his bidding. The rumor was not unfounded. The Commodore was "on the street"—in technical parlance—and the effect of his presence was soon felt. He telegraphed far and wide—all over the United States, it is said—for all the spare cash that he could raise—and a man of his reputed millions could raise a large amount, one would think, in a very short time. He "unloaded" all his stocks that were not immediately or ordinarily available, and devoted the proceeds to the sustenance of Central. He and his friends argued thus: "If we can sustain Central, all will be well; if we let that fall, all will fall, and widespread ruin will be the result." Accordingly, all the energies of the Commodore were devoted to Central, and up it went—gradually, but upward. At last the stock market seemed safe, but the rumors about LOCKWOOD & Co. were exceedingly painful. It was confidently asserted that they had failed, and that their failure was a heavy one. Eventually this rumor was confirmed, and down went stocks again.

Some said that the failure of LOCKWOOD & Co. would ease up the market, as they were, and had been, heavy borrowers. But what of this? There were others who had failed who were in the same category, and it was felt that the absence of these even from the loan market would make but little difference in the present crisis.

The day wore on. The Committee of the Gold Exchange reported from time to time the success which they had met in adjusting statements, and at 1 o'clock announced that but four statements were to come in. These were expected in soon, and the Committee returned to their labors.

Finally despair seemed to seize upon all concerned, mingled with indignation at the opposition that was manifested by the firm of SMITH, GOULD & MARTIN in not presenting their statements. The action of the Committee of Twenty was stayed, firmly barred, and no power could remove it. On the heels of this announcement came the injunction issued at the instance of SMITH, GOULD & MARTIN, restraining the Gold Exchange from taking the only course that could be taken to force them to a settlement.

Thus the day closed. A dead-lock in the proceedings of the Committee of Twenty, a failure of half a dozen brokers, the closing of the Gold Exchange Bank, and a feverish feeling in the stock market, the result of which on the morrow none could tell. This state of affairs was discouraging, but people who do business in Wall-street must expect to be discouraged at times. What to-day will bring forth none can tell, and so heartily sick are the majority of speculation in anything that they scarcely dared to speculate even upon probabilities.

Action of the Gold Exchange.

The members of the Gold Exchange met in executive session at the Gold Room at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Mr. TOWNSEND Cox in the chair.

The first business in order was the reception of a report of progress from the Committee of Twenty.

Mr. CAMBLOS stated briefly that affairs looked cheering, and there were indications, from what had been done up to that time, that by 1 o'clock the Committee would be enabled to accomplish their task. Those who have statements due appeared to come forward willingly and present it for settlement, and all whose returns had been made to the Committee expressed their satisfaction with what was doing, and a willingness to assist as far as lay in their power. There were 208 accounts then before the Committee, and the presumption was that the remainder—less than forty—would come in very soon. Arrangements had been made with the Farmer's Loan and Trust Company to act as Clearing House for the gold and currency, and members could be assured that that institution would pay out no balances until they were satisfactorily adjusted.

Mr. CAMBLOS said that the Committee looked to the Board to sustain them in their labors. They had been at work since 6 o'clock the previous evening, and were willing to work for an entire day longer, or employ as much time as was necessary in order to accomplish so desirable a result as the settlement of Friday's business. If the Committee failed, he thought that it would fall from lack of support from the members of the Exchange, and not from any deficiency on their part.

Mr. EDWARDS added a few words in confirmation of what had been said by Mr. CAMBLOS. Everything was progressing as satisfactorily as was possible. COLGATE, of TREVOR & COLGATE, had at last determined to send in his statement, and that would influence others who were holding back. All the Committee wanted was the confidence of the Board and individuals who had business before them, and all would go well.

Mr. HODGKIN stated that a number of tickets were destroyed on Tuesday by members who were disgusted with the failure of the Bank of New-York to clear the business before them. The loss of these tickets had delayed the Committee somewhat, but duplicates would be made out immediately.

Mr. EDWARDS announced that there were only thirty-seven more statements to be received in order to enable the Committee to complete their labors.

This announcement was received with cheers, and the executive session was adjourned, the members departing apparently feeling that they were at last getting "out of the wilderness."

A SECOND MEETING—THE AFFAIRS OF THE GOLD EXCHANGE BANK.

At noon the members of the Gold Exchange assembled for the purpose of receiving a further report from the Committee of Twenty,

Previous to the reception of the report, Mr. FISHER presented the following statement of the affairs of the Gold Exchange Bank:

Statement of the New-York Gold Exchange Bank to the Committee of the Gold Board:

An officer of the bank went into the Gold Room on the morning of Friday, the 24th inst., and suggested to a few that it would be impossible to clear the transactions of that day on account of an attempted corner. But in consultation it was decided that it was the duty of the bank to make the attempt, even at some sacrifice. The bank issued the clearing movement in the usual manner, and received in payment of balance a very large amount of gold and currency. It was necessary to restore a large portion of those amounts to the dealers or indespread disaster would have followed. To do this the bank was forced to depart from the rule of receiving all balances before paying any, and went on paying dealers a portion of the balance on their statements, reserving a safe margin where practicable, and trusting to the descent to make good any overpayments on the final settlement. This was the course pursued Friday and Saturday. On Saturday a committee was appointed at an informal meeting of dealers to confer with the directors, who went into an investigation, extending through Saturday and Sunday, on the plan to declare some dealers rejected from the clearing, and assume the rest as good—the only basis of settlement they deemed practicable. The bank acted on this in paying dealers on Monday. The emergency of the settlement with the Clearing-house of the banks on Monday and Tuesday, was passed by transferring to the Committee of the Clearing-house a sufficient amount to secure the balance one by the bank. The bank has now at its control (after settlement with the Clearing-house of the bank) not far from the amount of its capital and surplus with which to liquidate the dealers' statements as soon as we can ascertain what is due from the bank to the dealers, and from the dealers to the bank. It is the expectation that these results can be approximated to-day, and from all the evidence now accessible, we believe the bank to be solvent and able to pay all its debts. No complications exist at present except in our dealers' statements. The bank has not failed or suspended. It has paid all its obligations, as stated. It paid Monday's obligations at the Clearing-house in gold at par, and on Tuesday in $1,000,000 in gold, and say $1,300,000 securities.

H. W. BENEDICT, President.

TUESDAY, Sept. 28, 1869.

Mr. FISHER stated that he had been under the impression that the bank had paid money out to irresponsible parties, but he was now satisfied that such was not the case. They had paid money in gold and currency on some balances in order to aid the parties owning it, but he believed that such a course was wise, as by withholding the money they would involve many of their customers in ruin, which would be widespread in its efforts. The loans made by the bank were amply secured, and collaterals placed in the hands of VERMILYE & Co. As far as he (Mr. FISHER) had examined, the bank was able to pay its entire indebtedness.

The report of the Committee was accepted.

Mr. JACKSON, from the Committee of Twenty, then reported that the prospects were good; the Committee were getting along remarkably well, and had all but four of the statements in. The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company had agreed to make clearances. The Committee had been in session since 6 o'clock on Tuesday evening, and had accomplished thus far a good work. All they asked for was time, and they would complete the business before them.

A VOICE—We will give you a week, if you want it.

Mr. JACKSON said further that he thought the Committee would get through very soon, but how soon it was impossible to say. He did not like to specify any hour, for fear that they would have to disappoint members.

The President suggested that the next meeting be called by telegraph, which suggestion was adopted, and the meeting adjourned in the hope that when next they assembled a satisfactory conclusion would be announced.

THIRD MEETING OF THE EXCHANGE—A DEAD-LOCK.

The members assembled at 2 o'clock, subject to the telegraphic call by the President, in no very happy frame of mind. It was ascertained that SMITH, GOULD & MARTIN had peremptorily refused to submit their statement. It was also stated that they had sued out an injunction restraining the Gold Exchange from forcing them to a settlement by selling their gold under the rule.

Mr. CAMBLOS, of the Committee, made his report. He stated, amid almost breathless silence, that the Committee must confess their inability to clear the statements of Friday.

[Confusion and groans from the audience.]

Every statement, Mr. CAMLOS continued, was in except that of SMITH, GOULD & MARTIN, [Cries of "Hang them!"] and that firm did not even now refuse to furnish a statement, but prevaricated and procrastinated to such an extent that the Committee considered the case as hopeless. On Tuesday night this firm stated that their statement would certainly be in during the evening, but it did not come. At 10 o'clock on Tuesday evening they said that it should certainly be in by 10 o'clock to-day, (Wednesday,) but still it did not come. It is now, said Mr. CAMBLOS, 2:10, and we have heard nothing from them yet. All attempts to obtain an interview are unavailing, and he felt that the firm never did intend to make a statement. [Cries of "Shame; hang them."] Mr. CAMBLOS said he believed that the firm had put them off from time to time in order that the shorts might be forced to buy the large amount of gold—understood to be $6,000,000—held by or going to that house. The events of the last few days looked like it. At any rate the responsibility for the failure of the Committee to settle rests upon SMITH, GOULD & MARTIN'S heads, for the statements are in a condition to clear in fifteen minutes, if the Committee had that of the firm in question.

Mr. LELAND suggested that as the Committee had received from the other statements many tickets showing the condition of SMITH, GOULD & MARTIN'S affairs, the Committee be instructed to make out a statement from those tickets.

Mr. CAMBLOS remarked that the Committee could make up a statement, but they could not compel SMITH, GOULD & MARTIN to abide by it.

Mr. HODGKIN proposed that the statement be made up as proposed, and that SMITH, GOULD & MARTIN'S gold be sold out under the rule at 145; that the difference be sustained by the Board as an individual, and that a pro rata assessment be laid to cover the deficiency.

[Cries of "No, no; Wall-street don't do business in that way; you will have to make a new Wall-street if you undertake to do that."]

Mr. EDWARDS stated that Mr. CAMBLOS' remarks were quite correct, that he had attempted for half an hour to gain an interview with Mr. SMITH, and the only satisfaction was the following, which he obtained from Mr. SMITH'S lips: "My instructions are that you must not send in your statement until SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co. have had time to find out what effect the clearances made in this way will have on contracts made deliverable through the Gold Exchange Bank."

Among the various suggestions made was one from Mr. GRAY, who said that the Gold Room was short in gold $6,000,000. Now, was it better to take the gold of SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co. at 135, or declare the whole thing off, than to force this Board to take the gold from that firm?

Mr. HOYT said this was the most important motion yet made, and thought it policy for every short to corner his gold at 135.

Mr. JACKSON said Secretary BOUTWELL intended selling $6,000,000 gold soon. The dealers could buy of him and not allow those who have defrauded them to dictate what price should be paid. [Cries of that won't do; SMITH, GOULD & MARTIN will buy up that too.]

Considerable excitement prevailed, and the utmost indignation was expressed against the firm above named. Threats were made against them, which, had they been seconded, might have resulted in something serious. Finally the meeting was brought to order, and a motion prevailed to refer the matter back to the Committee, with instructions to report some plan of settlement.

The meeting adjourned, subject to the call of the President, as before; the members expressing a hope that some means would be found by which SMITH, GOULD & MARTIN might be brought to terms.

FOURTH MEETING—BITTER FAILURE.

The Gold Board had taken a recess until 5 o'clock, but at 3:30 o'clock the members were summoned by the stock telegraph to meet immediately to hear the report of the Committee of Twenty.

At 3:45 the meeting was organized, the Vice-President, Mr. HOYT, occupying the chair in the absence of the President.

The officers of the meeting had all been served with the injunction of SMITH GOULD, MARTIN & Co., restraining the Board from selling their gold. This document will be found printed elsewhere.

The Committee of Twenty then made the following report:

That we have placed the making-up of the accounts of SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co. in the hands of competent accountants, that we find it impossible to make a clearance by reason of the absence of SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co.'s authorized statement; that we cannot recommend any plan for future action, except trading Ex-Clearing-house; that we beg to be discharged after returning the certificates and tickets to the persons presenting them. Respectfully submitted, (Signed) R. J. EDWARDS, Chairman.

Mr. COLGATE suggested that the members keep and not destroy the tickets against SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co., as they might be of use. [Cries of "Good!" "That's right!" "Give it to 'em!"]

Mr. HODGKINS objected to the discharge of the Committee, as there are many questions with reference to these accounts that may arise in the next few days.

Mr. BEND favored the discharge of the Committee. They had worked hard and zealously to arrange this difficulty. They had been up all night, and labored steadily since 6 o'clock last evening. They now find that the only way to settle things is to do as we did in old times, before we had a Clearing Bank. The gold must go out Ex-Clearing-house, and every tub must stand on its own bottom.

Mr. CHAS. LELAND asked and received permission to give his written views on the best plan of arranging the difficulty, which he read as follows:

"If the room be largely short to SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co., let them be declared failed. Then let every house having gold going to SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co. sell that gold out for the account of SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co. at 135. buying it themselves, thus bringing themselves in the position of creditors of SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co. to the extent of the difference between what the gold was going to them at a bid of 135. This will obviate the necessity of any large public sale of gold to excite the market. As to the current price at the time the closing of the transaction takes place, say to-day, there is abundant proof that it is not only a fair price for them, but considerably higher than the price ruling since they have failed to comply with their creditors—in other words, failed entirely. In case, also, the injunction served upon the President of the Gold Exchange is legal and binding, this course, will beat their tactics. They are long of gold at high prices. They can't receive it; that is, they are insolvent. The gold must be sold for their account. This plan is a simple one. They can't prevent our protecting ourselves by it. We have all signified our willingness to settle at the rate of 135. They cannot or will not receive it at contract price, nor even at the price agreed upon by themselves—135. Now why should we not force them to do it by selling them out, each seller being the buyer, presenting our claim to them for the difference, wiping them off our books at once and forever. [Applause.]

The Chair explained that the difference between the suggestion of Mr. BEND and Mr. LELAND was that the former proposed to settle under the rule, and the latter by private agreement.

The report of the Committee was finally accepted.

Mr. UNDERHILL offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

That the transactions of Friday be settled ex-Clearing-house to-morrow.

Mr. TUCKER then moved that the Board adjourn until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, when it shall proceed to regular business. Agreed to.

The Board then adjourned at about 4:15 o'clock, most of the members being under the impression that they would go into the business of buying and selling this morning. But after the adjournment the President, Mr. TOWNSEND COX, arrived, and was greatly surprised that a meeting which was to commence at 5 o'clock had already been held. He immediately issued an order and had it posted on the door of the room, calling a special executive meeting at 10 o'clock this morning. It is feared if the Board proceeds to regular business without making some special provision for the long gold, that millions upon millions might be poured upon the market, and the gloomy anticipations set forth by Mr. KEPLER in his speech on Tuesday of gold at par and universal ruin be realised. The market certainly deserves very careful watching and delicate treatment in this emergency.

The Gold Exchange Bank in the Hands of a Receiver.

The Gold Exchange Bank made no clearances at the Bank Clearing-house yesterday. That was in itself suspicious. Upon inquiry at the Clearing-house it was ascertained that a committee of the house had been in session all the morning investigating the affairs of the bank. Here was confirmation of the oft-repeated rumor that the Gold Exchange Bank was in trouble. At the second meeting of the Gold Exchange in the morning a statement (given elsewhere) was made reporting the condition of the bank, which still further confirmed the impression that the institution was not safe.

An explanation of the failure to draw at the Clearing-house was volunteered, to the effect that the bank would pay checks of other banks over its counter, but this was not satisfactory.

Gentlemen who were down on the bank said that the report presented at the Gold Exchange was a whitewashing arrangement, and that the institution was in reality unsound.

It was said that an officer of the bank, during Tuesday night, confessed that they had paid out several millions of dollars to parties who had balances pending settlement before the balances were settled, but that they had done so in order that their customers might not be involved in ruin.

Everything that had been said against the institution was recalled, and all its evil deeds or shortcomings were brought to light in the hour of its adversity. The associated bankers had offered to come to its assistance and help to carry it over the crisis, and probably would have done so, had not the decree of the Court stayed all proceedings by placing the institution in the hands of a receiver. The order was issued by Judge CLERKE, and appointed Mr. AUGUSTUS HALL receiver. Now the affairs of the bank will be wound up. It was a State and not a National Bank, which fact it would be well to understand. Its business was confined to a limited circle comparatively, and not, like other banks, dependent upon the general community for sustenance. The effect of the closing of the bank will not be disastrous, it is believed, and if the institution is in as good a condition as has been represented, it will soon recover from its embarrassment.

At the investigation before the Clearing-house Committee it was proposed by the Gold Exchange Bank that the other banks should advance twenty per cent. on the $2,500,000 gold paid by the Gold Exchange Bank on Monday and Tuesday in the settlement of their indebtedness at the Clearing-house, which would enable them (the Gold Exchange Bank) to pay off their obligations. This would release the other securities held by the Committee of the Clearing-house, and give the Gold Exchange Bank about $300,000 currency. Several banks agreed to this proposition when it was learned that the bank was placed in the hands of a receiver, and of course all further operations looking to a settlement were stayed.

Sales of Gold.

The National Exchange commenced to call gold yesterday morning and sold large amounts during the day at rates ranging from 130 to 132. The amount sold was in the neighborhood of one and a half millions, but there were various private transactions to a much larger amount at the current rates.

The Room of the late Open Board of Brokers will open to-day for the transaction of business in the purchase and sale of gold. The transactions are to be at Clearing-house subject to the rules of the New-York Stock Exchange. Members of the Stock Exchange only are permitted to deal.

Some brokers intimate that this movement is made for the purpose of monopolizing the business of the Gold Exchange while that institution is cramped by the present deadlock. The declaration that only members of the Stock Exchange will be permitted to deal is an indication that this view is correct.

The Suspension of Lockwood & Co.

While the street was being agitated yesterday morning with rumors of failures, a faint whisper came to the ears of parties interested in Western stocks that the old and much-respected firm of LOCKWOOD & Co., on Broadway, above Wall-street, had failed. The rumor could scarcely be credited, but it soon received confirmation by the effect upon Michigan Southern and Lake Shore Railroad stocks. The announcement of the suspension of this firm will be received with feelings of deep regret by the business community. They have been in existence twenty-nine years, having commenced on the 1st of May, 1843, under the name and title of GENIN & LOCKWOOD. They opened their office on Broad-street, and their entire capital invested at the commencement was $2,000. But they soon gained the confidence of capitalists, and as the railroad interests of the United States, especially of the West, extended, their business gradually assumed larger proportions, and they became one of the first banking houses in the country. There are at present seven members of the firm, viz.: Messrs. Le Grand Lockwood, James H. Benedict, Lucas J. Van Boskereh, Le Grand Lockwood, Jr., Wm. B. Lockwood, Thomas R. Capon and James S. Wells. Mr. Edward P. Clarke is the attorney for the firm. They have made an assignment of their affairs to Captain JOHN P. ACKER, an old and esteemed friend of Mr. LOCKWOOD, and a gentleman who holds a high reputation for integrity. Under his management the creditors may rest assured of receiving every dollar that can be saved from a misfortune of which the present lamentable state of affairs was the primary cause.

Mr. LOCKWOOD and all his colleagues have placed their entire personal property in his possession for the benefit of the creditors. Mr. LOCKWOOD has lived in affluence, as became his income, having a magnificent mansion at Norwalk, Conn., valued at $800,000. The other partners were also possessed of fine properties. The principal creditors of the firm reside in Chicago, Cleveland, and other cities, and are all wealthy men, embracing such capitalists as A. M. STONE and W. WHITT, of Cleveland. They have been telegraphed to come on to this City, and are expected to arrive in season for a meeting on Friday, and when the situation of affairs will be more fully developed. At present the firm are unable to state their exact condition. It is reported on the street that they were credited with holding large amounts of Pacific Mail, Michigan Southern, Northwest and St. Paul; also that they have been short on New-York Central for the past twelve months; but the rumors of the street must be received with great caution. As an instance, we give a rumor which was circulated later in the day and had its influence on particular stocks, that an arrangement had been made by Commodore VANDERBILT with Mr. LOCKWOOD, by which the former was to relieve him by giving him 50,000 shares of Pacific Mail in return for his large interest in the Lake Shore Railroad. The falsity of this rumor can best be shown by the statement of the fact that Mr. LOCKWOOD has never spoken to or had dealings with Commodore VANDERBILT during his life. No inventory of the firm has yet been taken.

The Government Sale of Bonds.

This sale of bonds, for the details of which the reader is referred to the monetary column, shows, besides the figures at which the bids were made, the anxiety which was manifested on the part of the holders of these securities to convert them into funds which could be made available for business purposes. The total amount of bonds offered the Government was $8,554,000, and, after telegraphing the result to Washington, the Assistant Treasurer was instructed to accept $3,000,000 instead of $2,000,000, as was originally intended.

The Stock Panic.

Had a stock broker, well informed and not laboring under the excitement incident to the present state of affairs, been consulted yesterday morning as to the condition of the market, he would have unhesitatingly replied, "Well, Sir! I feel that affairs have assumed a more settled tone. The banks are coming nobly to our rescue, and through their aid some of the greater difficulties of the crisis will be avoided. One benefit of the present panic is, that it has brought in a number of outside capitalists, who feel assured of a safe investment at the present low prices. Besides, the Government will purchase three instead of two million of bonds to-day, and this will tend to produce ever a firmer feeling in the stock market. I would advise a purchase."

The broker's opinion was valuable if his customer desired to take a short turn. The aspect in the Stock Exchange was certainly more cheerful. When the Long Room was called to order early in the morning by a member, Mr. GRAY, of the firm of GRAY, PRINCE & Co., stated he had just had an interview with Mr. VERMILYE, of the Clearing-house, who had informed him that the Associated Banks of New-York would keep open to-day to certify checks, &c., until 4, 5, or even 6 o'clock, if necessary, to accommodate the brokers and business community and allay the excitement. This announcement was received with three hearty cheers, and immediately railway securities recovered from the panic prices of Tuesday evening. Up to 10:30 o'clock New-York Central had advanced 8 per cent.; Reading, 2; Michigan Southern, 3¼; Hudson River, 10, and so along the list. The only weakness displayed was in Pacific Mail, which declined 2½, and St. Paul preferred. But this settled feeling of the market was of short duration. The failures of Messrs. CHARLES A. MEIGS & Co. and of Messrs. FULLER, TREAT & COX were officially announced to the Board, and their stocks were sold out for them under the rule. The latter firm were paying differences, but were unable to take the stocks which they purchased on Tuesday. Both houses were among the most conservative on the street, and had never been known to be connected with any of the great speculative clique movements But they were dragged down by the heavy decline in the Vanderbilt stocks. Rumors of failures became numerous. Two more were soon officially announced—Messrs. JULIAN & Co. and Mr. C. W. KEEP. Away went the advances and the margins of those who took the advice of our "well-informed" broker!

At noon, New-York Central had declined 9 per cent.; Michigan Southern and Northwestern Common, 3¾; Northwestern Preferred, 1¾; Rock Island, 2¾; Harlem, 8; Hudson River, 6; Pacific Mail, 3¼; and at 1 o'clock there was a still further decline of New-York Central of 2 per cent.; Reading, 1⅜; Hudson River, 5; Wabash, 10; Erie, 3½; Pacific Mail, 2¾. Lenders who had made their loans on stock collateral, soon saw their securities swept away, and themselves saddled with collaterals ten to twenty per cent. lower than the margin demanded at the time of the negotiation. The money market became more stringent, and the rates paid were without a precedent in the history of Wall-street. From one-half to one per cent. was paid to have the low-priced stocks carried over until to-morrow, while as high as four per cent. was paid on the high-priced stocks. This difficulty arose not from any lack of currency, but entirely from distrust as to lenders and collaterals.

At 1:45 the following were the quotations: New-York Central, 147 bid; Erie, 29½@30½; Harlem, 124 bid; Hudson River, 135 bid; Reading, 91¾ bid; Michigan Southern, 73½ bid; Pittsburg, 84@85; Northwestern, 64¾; Northwestern Preferred, 78½ bid; Rock Island, 101½@102; Fort Wayne, 79 bid; Ohio and Mississippi, 24⅞@25; Western Union Telegraph, 34½@35; Pacific Mail, 59@59½; Adams Express, 47¾ bid; Wells, Fargo & Co. Express, 16 bid; American Merchants' Union Express, 29½@30½; United States Express, 43@48.

The stock market continued alternately buoyant and heavy, with wide and frequent fluctuations.

The failure of Messrs. LOCKWOOD & Co., which was rumored during the morning, became confirmed, and the Western stocks became more depressed.

However, it soon became whispered about that Commodore VANDERBILT had entered the field, this time with a settled determination to force up the prices of his stocks; that he had telegraphed throughout the country for all available funds to be used for their purchase.

Everybody had been keeping a sharp lookout for breakers, and at the prospect of getting into port safely every one drew a long breath. It was believed that bottom had been touched.

Before the close of the 1 o'clock Board New-York Central jumped to 140, and many stocks touched the highest point of the day; but at 3:15 P. M. the market again became unsettled, and prices were all off from the best price on the 1 o'clock call.

Considerable excitement was created by the action of the Stock Exchange in notifying to receive Erie certificates bearing the signature of SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co., but this was somewhat allayed by the receipt of a letter from the Gold Exchange Bank, stating that that firm was a creditor at that bank and did not owe a cent. This made the firm all right on the record. The following resolution was subsequently passed unanimously:

Resolved, That the members of the Long Room Stock Exchange deal in the Long Room until such time as the Governing Committee can perfect a plan for establishing a Gold Room under the government of this Association.

This action was regarded with great favor, and allayed much of the excitement. It was subsequently determined to hold gold sales in the old room of the Open Board of Brokers—

At 3:30 o'clock the market became feverish and lower, New-York Central falling again to 132 and Hudson River to 129. Subsequently confidence was again restored, and when we left the brokers bargaining with each other on the steps of the Stock Exchange, they were bidding 161 for New-York Central.

The following table will show the opening, highest and lowest prices of the day:

We would be pleased to express our opinions on the situation, and give our readers assurance of a more confident and settled feeling pervading the market this morning; but remembering the mistake of our "well-informed" broker, and having the experience of yesterday fresh in our memories, we refrain from doing so. There are so many "wheels within wheels," so many causes to operate for or against, and so many wild rumors to be anticipated, that we have determined not to foretell fair weather for fear of storms.

Battle Ground of the "Bulls and Bears" at 7:30 P. M.

A number of the stock and gold-dealing offices were to be seen lighted up, the inside giving no evidence of life beyond the presence of industrious appearing clerks engaged over their accounts, some of whom, when the final summing up is reached, it is feared, will have to announce the unpleasant tidings to their anxious employer, "You are a ruined man!" Even the great centre of excitement, the office of SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co., is at this hour in the sole possession of two rollicking Juniors whose, laughter greets the ear of the passers by.

The saloons in the vicinity contained a few of the panic-stricken, who might be heard expressing themselves without restraint as to the actions of the great kings of finance during the day; and these barroom wiseacres easily satisfied themselves that they could have placed the whole business of Wall-street in good working order within a few hours. It is to be feared their brains will be in too muddled a condition in the morning to give the public the benefit of their advice.

The Injunction Against the Gold Exchange.

Yesterday afternoon an injunction was served upon the President and each of the officers of the New-York Gold Exchange. The officers immediately called a meeting, but the injunction order was not taken into consideration. It was issued by Judge CARDOZO, at the instance of Messrs. SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co., and restrains the Board from selling the gold belonging or going to those parties. The Gold Board had not, at last advices, been able to decide how to dodge the issue. The following are copies of the papers in the case:

COMPLAINT OF SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & CO.

Supreme Court—City and County of New-York.—Henry N. Smith, Henry H. Martin, Jay Gould and James B. Bache, plaintiffs, vs. Townsend Cox, Thomas A. Hoyt, George H. Bend, Thomas F. Akers and George Phipps, and Townsend Cox as President of the New-York Gold Exchange, defendants.—The plaintiffs complain and allege:

First—That they are copartners, doing business as brokers and bankers in the City of New-York, under the firm name of Smith, Gould, Martin & Co.

Second—That the New-York Gold Exchange is a Joint Stock Association, composed of more than two hundred persons, associated together for the purpose of transacting business in gold; and almost if not quite the whole of the purchases and sales of gold in the City of New-York are made in the rooms of the said Association, where only its members are allowed to transact business; and it is practically impossible for any one to transact business at wholesale in the purchase and sale of gold as a broker in the said City unless he is a member of the said Association. That the above-named Henry N. Smith is a member of the said Association, acting therein as the representative of the plaintiffs, who have continually large dealings at wholesale in the purchase and sale of gold as brokers, in the City of New-York, and the plaintiffs have paid to the said Association, in the name of the said Henry N. Smith, an initiation fee of $1,000, the same being required by the said Association from each of its members as the condition of their privileges therein.

Third—That the defendant Cox is the President of the said Association, the defendants Hoyt and Bend are its Vice-Presidents, the defendant Akers is its Secretary, and the defendant Phipps its Treasurer.

Fourth—That by the rules adopted by the said Association, all contracts made by its members for the purchase or sale of gold are to be settled through the New-York Gold Exchange Bank, unless otherwise expressed in the contracts themselves.

Fifth—That the said bank is a clearing-house to which all the members of the said Association have been accustomed to send daily statements of their transactions in gold; and the said bank has been accustomed to make up from such statements a general account, and strike a balance to the debit or credit of each of the dealers, showing the net amount of gold and currency which will be due to or from him, from or to all other members of the said Association; and such balance is in every case but very small in proportion to the whole amount of each dealer's transactions, the proportion or ratio of such balance to the whole amount diminishing greatly as the transactions increase; so that where a broker has purchased ten millions of dollars of gold from other brokers, and sold ten millions one hundred thousand dollars of gold to a different set of brokers on the same day, he would, under the operation of the aforesaid rule, have to provide only one thousand dollars of gold to fulfill all his contracts on that day; whereas, if no such practice existed, it would be necessary for him, in order to carry out his contracts, to provide himself with ten millions of dollars of gold to deliver, and ten millions one hundred thousand dollars in currency, in addition to any premium on the gold, to pay for the coin which he is to receive.

Sixth—That on Friday, the 24th day of September, 1869, purchases and sales of gold were made for the account of the plaintiffs in the room of the said Association, and under its said rule, to the amount of over forty millions of dollars, and the transactions of the members of the said Association in gold had, in the same manner, on that day, amounted, as the plaintiffs are informed and believe, to more than three hundred millions of dollars.

Seventh—That the said Gold Exchange Bank has declared itself unable to make a clearance of the transactions in gold made, as aforesaid, on the said Friday, and wholly refuses to make up any statement of such transactions or to strike any balance therefor, and, as the plaintiffs are informed and believe, it has suspended payment upon its current obligations and is insolvent, and the said bank has not made, or attempted to make, any clearance of said transactions, nor, as the plaintiffs are informed and believe, is it possible for it to do so.

Eighth—That the plaintiffs, and all other parties to contracts for the purchase or sale of gold on the occasion aforesaid, (with the exception of a few contracts involving a comparatively small sum in all,) contemplated the settlement of all such contracts through the said bank, and by means of its system of clearing accounts, and would never have entered into contracts of such magnitude had they supposed that they would be required to settle them without the intervention of a clearing-house; that upon any other plan the said contracts could only be carried out, according to their terms, by the parties raising and tendering to each other in one day the sum of three hundred millions of dollars in gold coin of the United States, or certificates therefor, on the one hand, and about four hundred and fifty millions of dollars in paper currency of the United States on the other hand, which would be an absolute impossibility, (there not being, as the plaintiffs are informed and believe, half the said amount of gold coin of the United States upon this continent, and not more than twenty-five millions dollars thereof in the State of New-York, except what is held by the Federal Government, nor so much legal-tender currency in existence;) and it would be absolutely impossible that the contracts aforesaid should be fulfilled without the intervention of some species of clearing-house.

Ninth—That the defendants, and a number of members of the said Association acting with them, without any lawful authority, have assumed to appoint a committee from among themselves to clear the said transactions and strike a balance of the accounts, and as the plaintiffs are informed and believe, the said committee intend to throw out of the said accounts a large number of the said transactions in gold, actually entered into as aforesaid, and the result of such a clearance, if acquiesced in by the plaintiffs, would be DANGEROUS KEROSENE.

Another List of Places Where it is Sold—Action of the Fire Commissioners.

At the meeting of the Board of Health yesterday, Dr. HARRIS, the Sanitary Superintendent, reported that the tests of explosive oils by the chemist and his assistants, the past week, give one specimen of pure naphtha ("American Liquid Safety Gas,") and fourteen specimens which give off explosive vapor at a temperature below 80° Fahrenheit, or the heat of ordinary apartments of the poor who use stoves; while no less than forty-eight out of the fifty-one specimens examined, failed to abide the tests as required by law, twenty-five specimens were below the legal standard by all tests, and only three were found at standard tests.

The following additional list of places where oils below the legal standard are sold, was presented: No. 331 East Houston-street; No. 174 Avenue B; No. 228 Avenue B; No. 224 Avenue B; No. 50 Avenue A; No. 104 Avenue A; No. 47 Avenue A; No. 48 Avenue A; No. 103 First-street; No. 100 Avenue B; No. 194 Second-street; No. 29 Avenue C; No. 65 Avenue C; No. 69 Avenue C; No. 85 Avenue C. At the meeting of the Fire Commissioners, yesterday, Commissioners WILSON and MCLEAN, the Committee on Combustibles, reported the following additional list of persons upon whose premises kerosene oil, below the standard test, had been found: Henry Meyer, southeast corner Ninety-second-street and Third-avenue; Gerard Abel, No. 2,268 Third-avenue; Daniel Driscoll, No. 2,216 Third-avenue; Albert Block, No. 822 Grand-street; Mary Farr, No. 2,331 Third-avenue; Charles J. Stark, No. 2,175 Third-avenue; Geo. Kreiling, No. 117 East One Hundred and Twenty-ninth-street; Wm. Saick, No. 88 Tenth-avenue; Claus Van Thaden, No. 72 Stanton-street; Michael Molonguney, Jr., No. 4 Ninth-avenue; Henry C. Langhaar, No. 23 Stanton-street.

The Committee presented a resolution, which was adopted, requiring that these persons be served with the necessary notices, and that legal proceedings be instituted against them for the recovery of penalties and to secure the removal of the dangerous oil.

The Board ordered that fire signal No. 456 be established at the Third-avenue Skating Rink, now occupied by the American Institute, and the Board adjourned.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Before Judge Nelson.

PROPERTY OF BANKRUPT—RIGHTS OF ASSIGNEES.

In the Matter of Henry Vogel, a Bankrupt.—NELSON, C. J.—This is a petition for the revision of a decision by the District Judge in bankruptcy. The petition in bankruptcy was filed on the 5th of October, 1868, by Vogel, and on the 7th he was declared a bankrupt. On the 6th he surrendered to the Register to whom the case was referred, a stock of goods in store at No. 39 Murray-street, New-York. Assignees were afterward duly appointed. Certain creditors of the bankrupt who had sold to him a part of his stock in trade, upon the ground that he had made a fraudulent purchase of them, have replevied the goods in a State Court on the 6th of October and also on the 10th. The assignees claimed that the title of the goods had vested in them, and petitioned the Judge for a delivery of them into their hands. The Judge made an order accordingly. It is from this order that the appeal has been taken. The question involved has been several times before us, not perhaps in the precise shape in which it is now presented, but presenting substantially the same principle; and that is, as to whether or not all property of the bankrupt, in his actual possession at the time of filing the petition in bankruptcy, does not pass into the hands of the assignees the instant they are appointed? We have regarded the several provisions of the act of Congress specially referred to in the opinion of the Judge, as decisive in favor of the affirmative of this question. The thirty-eighth section provides that the filing of the petition shall be deemed and taken to be the commencement of proceedings in bankruptcy under the act. And the fourteenth section that the assignment of the estate of the bankrupt made to the assignee shall relate back to the commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy; and that, thereupon, by operation of law, the title to all such property and estate, real and personal, shall vest in the assignee. Nothing can be more specific and decisive on the question, and there are no other parts of the act, when rightly understood, varying the legal effect of these sections. The proper remedy for the creditors, in the circumstances, was to apply to the District Court for the removal of, or to await the appointment of the assignees, and institute a proper action against them in the District or Circuit Court. The petition for review dismissed.

For the petition, A. Van Wagner; opposed, C. H. Smith and Dubois Smith.

COURT OF APPEALS—SEPT. 29.

Before Chief Justice Hunt and a Full Bench.

ERIE RAILROAD ACCIDENT—ALLEGED NEGLIGENCE.

Polly Smith, Administratrix, &c., Respondent, vs. The Erie Railroad Company, Appellant.—The respondent sued the Erie Railroad Company for damages resulting from the death of her husband by the Company's train. It appeared on the trial below that the husband of plaintiff was unloading his wagon at a point in the western portion of the State where the Erie and Central Roads had converging tracks; that after having unloaded he attempted to pass across the track when, it alleged, as approaching train of the Erie Road, without giving any signal which seemed to have been perceived by the deceased, struck him and thereby produced his death. Testimony was given on behalf of the Company that the way in which the deceased attempted to pass on there was no room for and except over the sleepers and ties of the road, while he might either have gone back the way he came or have gone directly forward and have been perfectly safe. On these facts it was claimed that the deceased was not free from carelessness; and on that ground, and the further ground that they had not shown carelessness on the part of the Company, both at the close of the plaintiff's testimony and the close of the case, a motion for nonsuit was made. These motions were both denied, and the case going to the jury, a verdict was given to plaintiff for the sum of $8,000. The ruling of the Judge at Circuit was confirmed at General Term, and appeal taken to them to this Court.

Appellant contended that on the facts of the case, as they stood at the close of the trial, it was the duty of the Judge to assume that carelessness on the part of the Company had not been shown, while carelessness on the part of the deceased had been shown, and therefore grant a nonsuit.

Respondent contended that the Court had acted properly in submitting these questions to the jury, by whom alone the questions could be properly decided. Decision reserved.

Judge Gray for appellant, Mr. Brown for respondent.

ANOTHER ERIE RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Adeline Havens, Administratrix, et al., Respondent vs. The Erie Railway Company, Appellants.—This action was brought to recover damages for the death of the respondent's husband, who, it is alleged, was killed by the carelessness of the appellants. In November, 1866, the husband of Adeline Havens was approaching the track of the Company at a crossing thereon, and seeing no signals of an approaching train attempted to cross the track, when he came in collision with the train and was killed. The question of carelessness on the part of the deceased also arose in this case. It appeared that seeing no signals when within eighty rods of the crossing the deceased, who was accompanied with another man, who escaped, looked but once for an approaching train until he reached the track. It was claimed by the Company that, under the circumstances, the deceased did not exercise due care, in not looking up and down the track as he approached it, especially [illegible] approaching train could be seen a mile [illegible] Judge charged that the deceased was not bound to look up and down the road unless there were signals given; and if no signals were heard, he would have the right to think there was no train within eighty rods. In thus charging, the Company claim the Judge to have erred, and therefore appeal.

Decision reserved.

Judge Gray for appellant; Mr. Brown for respondent.

CONSTRUCTION OF A WILL.

Abigail Brown, Executrix, &c., Appellant, vs. George W. Brown, Respondent.—The husband of the respondent died, leaving a will in which he bequeathed to his wife the use and enjoyment of his estate, both real and personal, during her lifetime or widowhood, the residue to the respondent on paying the debts against the estate. The widow was adjudged to pay the debts due by the estate at her husband's death out of the estate, and from this judgment she appealed.

It was contended on behalf of appellant that the intention of the provisions of the will were that the respondent should pay the debts of the estate as a condition of his taking the residuary interest. On the part of the respondent it was contended that the meaning of the testator was that the debts due at his death should be paid out of the estate, as it could not be expected that creditors of the estate would await her death for payment, and that the debts which the respondent was to pay were those which should be due on the estate at the time he took the residuary interest.

Decision reserved.

D. M. Powers for appellant, Isaac S. Newton for respondent.

POWER OF SALE.

Benjamin F. Fairchild, Appellant, vs. Alonzo Crillenden et al., Executors, &c., Respondents.—In October 1868, Mrs. Eliza B. Somers died seized of a large amount of real and personal estate, and in her will devised to her husband an estate for life in the property in question, and on his death the same or proceeds thereof, if sold, should form part of her residuary estate which she devised to her own and her husband's relatives in fifth parts, with directions that the shares should not lapse. She further provided in her will as follows:

"It is, however, my will and I order and direct that the real estate herein given and devised to my husband during his lifetime shall not be sold by my said executors without the written consent of my said husband, and in case of a sale thereof with his consent, it is my will that my said husband shall receive the interest of the proceeds of the sale thereof during his lifetime."

The husband died before any sale of the specific property was made; and subsequent to his death a sale being made to the appellant and the deed tendered by the executors, it was refused, on the ground that the husband being dead the executors no longer possessed the power of sale under the provisions of the will.

On the trial below the Court decided in favor of the power of the executors to execute the deed, and therefore decreed that the vendee was bound to accept it. Respondent, in arguing against the theory of the appellant said: "The appellant's objection to the title tendered him, is based upon the idea that the power of sale is inconsistent with, and defeats the devise to the residuary devisees, and is therefore void. This idea is unsupported by any authority or by any fair interpretation of the will. The conferring of the power gives no interest in the lands to the executors. The title vests at once in the devisees, subject only to the execution of the power for the purposes for which it was conferred."

Decision reserved.

Wm. Henry Arnoux for appellants, H. W. Johnson for respondents.

COUNSEL FEE IRREGULARLY ALLOWED.

Susannah B. Young, Administratrix de bonis non, of Catharine C. Young, Appellant, vs. James H. Brush et al., Executors of David Brush.—This was an appeal from an order confirmed by Judge Barnard and Judge Cardozo at General Term, (Judge Ingraham dissenting,) whereby a counsel fee of $3,654 70, besides $376 20 costs, was allowed against the plaintiff in an action to recover from the defendants and respondents the sum of $5,000, admitted to have been held by David Brush in his lifetime as the executor of Catharine C. Young.

Appellant in the points taken contended that the plaintiff was not to be sued to bring this action; that it was properly brought; that the Court had adjudged that there was due to her from the defendants a balance exceeding $2,782, ($3,000 having been previously paid;) but that the defendants should, nevertheless, recover against her their counsel fees to the amount of $2,783, (although the amount in dispute was less than $1,245,) and their costs, (which have been actually taxed at $810 05,) amounting altogether to more than $3,663, thus turning the balance against the plaintiff of $881, as the result of bringing an action to recover an undisputed balance due to the estate of $2,782 64.

Respondent contended in opposition that it cannot be successfully urged that, because this suit is brought by the defendants to account, they are any the less entitled to their expenses, than if it were a suit by some third party making a claim upon the fund. The principle is, that trustees are to be indemnified against all expenses necessarily incurred in the faithful discharge of their duties. A part of their duties is to account. The right of the cestui que trust is to dispute the account and make exceptions. This is right, moreover, is to be exceedingly captious, as it seems to the defendants' counsel, he has been in this case, and probably would have been less so had he believed in the principle now contended for. It cost the defendants more to prove the payment of $43 for the funeral bill, and some other items, than the items amounted to. The reason of the rule of indemnity applies in one case as much the other.

Decision reserved.

Mr. Bidwell for appellant, Charles H. Smith for respondent.

Loyal P. Kellogg, Appellant, vs. Oakes Ames, Respondent.—All further proceedings in this case are ordered to be suspended to enable the respondent to move the Court below to state whether or not the judgment was reversed upon questions of fact as well as of law.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS—SEPT. 29.

Before Judge Clerke.

REMOVAL OF CAUSE TO UNITED STATES COURT.

Luther C. Challis vs. The Central Branch Union Pacific Railroad Co.—This was a motion made by counsel for the defendants to remove the case from the Supreme Court of this State to the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New-York. The grounds of the motion were, that the plaintiff in the action is not a citizen of this State, and that the Central Branch Union Pacific Railroad Company is a corporation created in the State of Kansas. The matter was placed in the hands of a referee some time since, but it appears that no trial had ever been had in any Court.

The defendants claim that they have a legal defence to the claim set up by the plaintiff. It appears that the plaintiff negotiated a modification of a treaty with the Kickapoo Indians in accordance with a resolution passed by a Board of Directors of the Company authorizing him to do so. By this treaty he consummated the purchase of 150,000 acres of land, and plaintiff alleged it was through his personal influence that such an advantageous treaty was made. In addition to this he states that he secured 500,000 acres of land from the United States Government, which is valued at $6,437,911, and that he procured the passage of an act in the Legislature by which bonds to the amount of $1,600,000 were placed at their disposal to aid in the construction of the road. For these services plaintiff now claims $500,000 from the defendants. The motion was opposed on the ground that the answer of the defendants made no allusion to the defence founded on the treaties or laws of the United States. It had not been claimed in any one of the papers before the Court that the defendant was a corporation organized under any law of the United States. There was only one defendant in the action, that was the Central Branch of the Union Pacific Railroad Company. He then cited numerous authorities against entertaining the motion. Under section 12 of the Judiciary act of 1789 the motion could not stand, because it was required by that act that such motion should be made at the time of entering his appearance in said State Court. Nor could the motion be made under the act of July, 1866, because by that act provision was made only for a motion in a case in which a citizen of the State in which the suit is brought, is or shall be, a defendant, with a citizen of another State as a codefendant. Neither could the motion be made under act of July 27, 1868, and March 2, 1867; and further, as the motion was not made before the trial of the action it was now too late to bring it up. It was claimed in the case that the individuals comprising the Company were, by conclusion of law, supposed or presumed to be citizens of the State creating the corporation. There were, no doubt, decisions to that effect; but the Constitution recognizes no such principle as that, and in order to entitle a case to be removed, it should amply appear to the satisfaction of the Court that the controversy was between citizens of different States only. That is a provision of the Constitution which could not be escaped by legislation either judicial or State.

Decision reserved.

D. M. Porter for motion, Ex-Judge Fullerton opposed.

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 29—P. M.

The Wall-street panic reached its height of excitement about 2 o'clock to-day, and we feel fairly justified to-night in stating that the latest turn is to improvement in confidence as well as in prices at the Stock Exchange.

The Gold clearances have been restored to private settlements. It was otherwise determined by the Gold Room last night, and the Committee of twenty members, embracing several experts in accounts, worked through the entire night to perfect a balance sheet of Friday's transactions. The work was made so far complete as to require only a single link—but an important one—to settle all differences. The missing statement was due from JAY GOULD'S Broad-street house. They delayed or prevaricated, and meanwhile attempted to force the Street to buy or settle Gold at their own price until the hour of reporting the work of the Committee to the Gold Room had expired. Then it was found that GOULD had no real intention of rendering a statement of even the direct transactions of his house, excluding his own enormous orders in connection with FISK through other Brokers. It was made too palpable that a further swindle was to be attempted, so the Committee of the Room asked to be discharged from further service, which request was granted, and the Room resolved to remit all the transactions of Friday to private settlement among and between the Brokers. We hear that no difficulty occurred in carrying out this resolve up to the close of the day. Most of the Brokers now discover that a world of suspense and trouble and embarrassment would have been saved if all clearings had been thrown overboard early on Saturday morning when the utter incapacity of the Gold Exchange Bank to conduct the business was made patent. It seems surprising after four days' painful delay and panic, that JAY GOULD and his house, any more than FISK, Jr., and his Broker BELDEN, should have been recognized after the explosion at noon on Friday, as constituting a bar to the adjustment of accounts between the other Brokers of the Street. FISK, Jr., and BELDEN had fled the Street early on Friday afternoon. If GOULD and SMITH had followed their example on Friday night, it would have saved the Street an infinite deal of annoyance and proved quite as well for themselves in the end, judging by their disgusting, but very unsuccessful, performances to-day.

In resolving to settle their Gold accounts among themselves, as far as it could be done in the absence of the statement of JAY GOULD & Co., the Brokers were, of course, compelled to leave the contracts of that concern, acknowledged as well as unacknowledged, to be closed out, pr[illegible], at least, under the standing rules of the Gold Room and Stock Exchange. But here they were met by a process of injunction from Judge CARDOZO at the instance of JAY GOULD & Co., restraining all action of the Gold Room looking to any such settlement. The text and purpose of this formidable legal document will be found in our general news columns. It will be respected, of course, by the officers and members of the Gold Room, but it will not arrest the ordinary dealings in Gold, which will be resumed to-morrow exclusive of all obligations to clear the transactions of the day, otherwise than between the Brokers themselves. The Stock Exchange have also thrown open one of their rooms to dealings in Gold. Nor does this legal process prevent the free action of the Stock Exchange in turning out the partners of JAY GOULD, and forbidding all dealings in Stocks or Gold with or for account of his house by its members. What action may be taken in this regard we cannot undertake to say. The feeling to-day was very strong against GOULD and SMITH, which was not especially mitigated by the array of police in front of their office and of learned lawyers within.

Turning to the Stock Market, we have to report the worst panic witnessed for several years past, but fortunately culminating to all appearances about 2 o'clock in the Afternoon. The credit of the long-established house of Messrs. LOCKWOOD & Co., with which rumor was busy yesterday and the day before, was brought to suspension early in the forenoon, and a general assignment of their affairs to Captain JOHN P. ACKER was announced in the Afternoon. The interest of the house in several of the Western Roads, amounting in the case of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern line, to an official connection, was known to be large, and also important in Pacific Mail, but it was not deemed beyond their ability and wealth to go through with their undertakings in all ordinary emergencies. That an extra strain upon their resources should have grown out of the events of last week, and inflicted the mortification of stoppage of payments, (temporary though it may prove,) is not only the subject of deep regret to the friends and neighbors in business of the house, but a real misfortune to the Stock Market, with which the name of the senior partner had become almost proverbial.

The stoppage of Messrs. CHARLES A. MEIGS & SON, another firm of long standing, and high respectability on the Stock Exchange, was also announced this forenoon. The losses of the house by the fall of Stocks in the last few days were sufficient to swamp a handsome capital which it had been the care of Mr. MEIGS for ten or twelve years to manage with great prudence. Two other failures of less importance were made known, Messrs. FULLER, TREAT & COX, and W. JULIAN. The Gold Exchange Bank, (a State Association under the Free Banking law of New-York,) also went by the board and into the hands of a Receiver. The event was not unexpected. The concern was pretty well exhausted yesterday, after being helped through the Clearing House, and we understand that only about $400,000 in ready cash (Gold and Currency) passes to the Receiver to assist with the Bills Receivable of the Bank in liquidating a Deposit line greatly reduced, no doubt, from last week's average of $1,300,000. The capital $500,000 will probably be found impaired, but this is only a surmise from the absence of intelligent information from the concern since the present crisis set in, and in the unfortunate absence from the City of the Cashier, Mr. JACOB RUSSELL.

The above are the ascertained disasters of the day. We have no reason to suppose the list incomplete. The losses from the panic fall in Stocks are something appalling if the sales in the Long Room are taken into the account with the official record of sales at the Stock Boards. It is proper to say, however, that a large proportion of these sales was the result of the stoppages of Mr. LOCKWOOD and Mr. MEIGS, and as soon as it was known in the Afternoon that no new misfortunes had occurred, and that some degree of confidence had been restored to the Money market—to which the Secretary of the Treasury contributed by accepting $3,000,000 United States 5-20s for the Sinking Fund, in place of two millions advertised for—a better feeling prevailed in the Stock market, and a fair recovery in prices ensued. The following are the closing quotations, as compared with Tuesday night, and also with the very lowest figures of the day. The rates for Foreign Bills were 108@108½ ₱ cent., 60 days, London, and 108¼@108⅜ short sight. The Street sales of Gold were at 131¼@132 ₱ cent.

CUBA.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times thinks that there is little hope of a compromise between Spain and Cuba, as Spain will grant nothing unless the Cubans lay down their arms. Her motto is "Nothing by Compulsion."

A cable dispatch, it is stated, has been received by a Cuban in New-York announcing the arrival at Port Mahon, Spain, of the Fernando Po political prisoners from Havana. The prisoners, it is understood, will be sent to the Canary Islands, as some of them have written to their friends to forward them funds there. Of the original number of prisoners which left Havana four have died.

Five Cubans, who arrived at Nassau, N. P., Sept. 22, report the battle at Las Tunas a great victory for the Cubans. Fifteen Spanish officers who were taken prisoners were immediately shot. The Republican State Convention.

The Convention at Syracuse yesterday adopted a platform on which the Republicans of the State will heartily rally. Its declaration in regard to the public debt contrasts felicitously with the clumsy generalization by which the Democrats endeavor to disguise their policy of repudiation. Principal and interest, say the Republicans, "shall be paid in coin as the same matures;" and all devices and subterfuges looking to a violation of the plighted faith of the nation are scouted as demoralizing and disastrous. The equalization and simplification of the fiscal system, and the mitigation of its burdens as rapidly as the reform becomes practicable, form the subject of another resolution, which will commend itself to the popular judgment. The "wise, firm, moderate and frugal rule" of the Grant administration receives cordial recognition; its energy and fidelity in collecting the revenue, and the success with which it has labored for the reduction of the debt, being cited as among the evidences of its title to approval. The Fifteenth Amendment is indorsed, the maintenance of political equality regardless of race or color, and the obligation of the Government to uphold the rights of all citizens, native or naturalized, are made subjects of equally explicit declarations. A general expression of sympathy with struggling peoples receives point and emphasis from identification with the Cuban cause; and the Administration is assured in advance of the unfaltering support of Republicans whenever in its judgment the facts in its possession shall warrant the recognition of the insurgents as belligerents. A liberal and comprehensive Canal policy is urged as one of the requirements of the State; and the interposition of its full legislature is invoked to prevent the repetition of the frauds which have disgraced elections in this City. A proposition to engraft the temperance question upon the platform was wisely voted down.

The judicious measures by which the three Committees in this City terminated their disastrous and discreditable strife, and laid the foundation of unity and efficiency, rendered unnecessary the interference of the Convention. The terms of the compromise were received by the delegates with marked satisfaction; and the report adopted sets forth the new organization as that which will be sustained as regular. The Republicans of the City and the State may be congratulated upon the friendly adjustment of vexatious and long-standing differences; and the result of the arrangement, we may reasonably hope, will be seen in the cordial coöperation of all who seek the continued success of the party and its principles.

The ticket, with GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS at its head, has sterling merit to recommend it to the favor of the people.

The Lessons of the Crisis.

The originators of the panic now running its course have drawn down upon themselves universal opprobrium, but while doing justice to the peculiarities of their characters, it is impossible to overlook the fact that they are mere accidents of the hour, and that the machinery upon which they work is the chief cause of the present troubles. The section of the public which never interests itself in the price of stocks was naturally at a loss to account for the sudden collapse. The country is in a prosperous condition. There was no reason to anticipate dangerous complications in any direction. The Secretary of the Treasury had given the world to understand that his system of selling gold and bonds at regular intervals would tend to prevent any violent fluctuation in prices. Why, then, should there be a panic, even among speculaters? And is it likely that the panic will affect the general interests of trade?

The first of these two questions is easier to answer than the second. The very prosperity of the country, combined with the inelasticity of our circulating medium, has tended to produce the recent disorder. The crops of grain in the West, and of cotton in the South, have been heavy, and in order to move them, currency to a large amount has been required. That currency must remain where it has gone, for it is wanted there, and as it was much inflated previously, there becomes some danger of a serious deadlock. All this is part of the evils inseparable from "paper money," but a hasty attempt to sweep paper away might only involve the country in greater disasters than we have yet witnessed. At present general trade has not suffered very severely. Great depression has been occasioned, and the feeling of insincerity which prevails on all sides causes people to keep their pockets tightly closed. On the other hand, even the stock market is assisted by money flowing into it from unusual sources. People who have by them a little spare money are tempted by the cheapness of stocks to invest part of their savings, and this welcome stream was flowing into the street pretty regularly all day yesterday. It had a good deal to do with that rally in prices which occurred at a critical part of the afternoon, when the rumors of heavy failures might otherwise have had a calamitous effect. Many stocks are now quoted far below their value, and everybody knows that they must recover in course of time. They seem, to outsiders, to offer great temptations for investment, and many little private boardings were consequently unlocked yesterday and turned into the brokers' offices. The refreshing current was eagerly welcomed in these dry and thirsty regions.

The trade of the South, which is drawing away so large an amount of currency, is essentially a healthy trade, and therefore there is nothing to regret in the depletion we are witnessing. The greenbacks have gone, not for speculative purposes, not to assist in gambling projects, but to act in their proper capacity as a medium of exchange. There is all the more reason why the Government should seriously take into consideration the straits to which we shall be reduced if some steps are not adopted to lend elasticity to the currency. Could we all awake one morning and find specie payment quietly reëstablished, with the wherewithal to carry it on, and no convulsion impending, there would be great cause for a day of thanksgiving over the transformation. But a change affecting so many interests cannot be made on the instant. It is none the less the urgent duty of the Government to direct its policy toward the ultimate restoration of a gold basis. We have always needed a financier of genius at the head of affairs, and we need him now more than ever. If we cannot hope for a "heaven-born Minister," we may fairly expect that Congress will apply itself next session in a more serious and earnest manner than ever it has done before to the study of our financial position. One of the grandest careers ever made in any country is now open to the man who proved himself competent to conduct us safely through the shoals and quicksands of an irredeemable paper currency to the firm ground of specie payment.

The stress of the present tempest has, we trust, already been experienced, and everybody engaged largely in mercantile transactions begins to breathe more freely. Trouble of this kind is like "the letting out of water"—no one can tell where it will be turned back. There can be no doubt that at one time the trade of the country seemed likely to receive a great shock. But the very feeling which prevailed last night, that the worst had been tided over, tends to restore confidence and credit. The great difficulty now is to decide who can be trusted. The banks very wisely gave all the aid they could to their customers yesterday by extending the usual time for settling accounts, and in some instances by rendering private assistance of a more substantial character. These measures helped to stop the fissure which at midday seemed to be widening every moment. We make no predictions with reference to what may still be before us. But it is fair to say that the sky is clearer, to all appearance, than it has been at any time for a week past. The fears which might still be entertained will perhaps turn out to be mere shadows. As for the Gold Board, and everything connected with it, no one would be sorry to hear that it had sunk to rise no more. Congress could greatly help to bring about that desirable consummation.

False Pretences in the Mississippi Canvass.

It is evident that Judge DENT intends to cultivate sedulously the spirit which dictated his nomination. The scheme for making him the candidate of "The National Republican Union Party" was conceived in fraud; and his speeches as candidate are impregnated with fraud and falsehood. So far as he and his party are concerned, the canvass is to be one of false pretences.

In his Corinth speech, Mr. DENT characterised his opponents as the "bitter-enders" or "extremists;" and the same epithets, used in the same connection, abound in the newspapers supporting Mr. DENT. "The one party led by TARBELL, AMES, ALCORN & Co.,"—he is reported to have said—"wanted to disfranchise the white people, while the party he belonged to was in favor of universal suffrage and amnesty." Now, Messrs. ALCORN and TARBELL are respected and influential leaders of the Republican Party proper in the State; General AMES has won the confidence of the country, and justified the confidence reposed in him by the Administration, by his course as Commander of the Military District. And the party with whom they are associated, instead of being committed to the policy of proscription, as Mr. DENT alleges, has called upon Congress to remove whatever disabilities remain subject to its control, and has announced its purpose to take the field in favor of expunging from the new Constitution all harsh and intolerant provisions.

The Mississippi Republicans, whom Mr. DENT denounces as "bitter-enders" in malignity, and "extremists" in their purposes and plans, to-day stand upon ground which he impudently claims as his own. They are for universal suffrage and amnesty. They proclaim a policy which will secure the enfranchisement of all, and render impossible the imposition of the disabilities which Mr. DENT declares they contemplate. Their principles are as broad as tolerant, as just as those on which WALKER was elected Governor of Virginia. And when Mr. DENT ignores the fact, and imputes to them intentions and opinions at variance with their platform, he simply shows the untrustworthiness of his representations and the dishonesty of the cause of which he is the champion.

The truth is, Mr. DENT has been nominated to fight the battle of the Democracy in Mississippi. The Republicans who support him are a mere handful, all told, and their object is notorious; they are not two in a thousand of the Republicans of the State. The Democrats have put him forward, relying upon some imaginary influence arising out of a remote relationship with the President; and their design is to control the organization of the new Government, and to work the new Constitution in the interest of those who are at heart its enemies. It is a game that indicates bad faith on the part of its promoters, and Mr. DENT, by consenting to be their instrument, demonstrates his unfitness for the position to which he aspires.

The Gold Gambling Conspiracy.

A legal document growing out of the gold gambling of last week, which will be found in another place—the application for injunction to Judge CARDOZO against the Gold Exchange—makes the extraordinary confession that forty millions of gold were bought and sold for the account of the plaintiffs, GOULD and SMITH, in a single day! Aside from the appalling total of this gambling transaction which these plaintiffs themselves confess could not have been completed by actual delivery by all the gold in New-York, outside the Treasury, it is also an admission, under oath, that they, GOULD and SMITH, were parties to and principals with FISK, Jr., in all the gigantic operations of Friday last, as no such sum as forty millions is believed to have been bought or sold on that day without the agency of certain brokers, acting under the joint or clique orders of FISK, Jr., given in the presence and with the sanction of GOULD and SMITH, whose contracts the latter now attempt to repudiate. These facts require no extended notice. Indeed, the whole disgusting conspiracy, as developed from day to day, and its attendant consequences, carry their own commentary.

The public have reason to be shocked at the repeated abuses of the process of injunction by the Courts of New-York City, on the most trivial pretexts and for the worst possible objects; but as the matter is left, by our present laws, within the discretion of the Judges, we have to say of Judge CARDOZO, in the case under notice of restraining the Gold Exchange from enforcing its own rules, that he has only furnished another illustration of the wicked purposes to which our judicial system may be perverted.

The prominent men of the successful party in the recent election in Virginia have been divided in opinion upon the question whether it would be proper for the Legislature, which is to assemble on the 5th of next month, to choose United States Senators. They appealed to General CANBY, the military commander of the district, for his decision; but he, while not hesitating to express unofficially his opinion that the election of Senators was authorized and necessary to complete the reconstruction of the State, requested the Secretary of War to submit the question to the Attorney-General. This was accordingly done, and this morning we are enabled to give Mr. HOAR's opinion. The Attorney-General says that it seems to him that the election of Senators, like the voting upon the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States, is a part of the action contemplated by Congress as preliminary to the restoration of Virginia to its full relation to the Government. He regards such an election, therefore, as essential to the completeness of the action of the Legislature, and says the military commander should not interfere. It will, of course, remain for the Senate to pass upon the qualifications of the two members thus chosen.

Western Democrats on the March.

General ROSECRANS has not counseled in vain. His letter to the Ohio Democracy, declining the nomination that had been tendered him, and setting forth the necessity for change in the platform and tactics of the party, has imparted force and direction to Western opinion upon the subject. In Indiana and Wisconsin, Democratic journals had proclaimed the growth of a desire to shake off the old Copperhead issues, and to deal with living, practical questions under the leadership of men who realize the drift of the revolution which the war accomplished. But the view was vague and intangible. General ROSECRANS gave courage to those who cherished it, and in the Wisconsin Convention they achieved a partial triumph. The platform adopted by that body was mild and rational compared with the utterances which have hitherto prevailed.

The Democratic Convention of Minnesota has taken a similar though a yet larger stride in advance of those who guide the affairs of the party in the Eastern States. Minnesota boasts of a bracing and exhilarating atmosphere, and a go-ahead, energetic people. These characteristics may or may not explain the determination of the Democracy of the State to be bound no more by the traditions of Tammany. This only is certain—the Convention whose proceedings we chronicled yesterday declared by a formal resolution "that the Democracy of Minnesota desire to act independently of mere forms and theories which have lost their substance," and "to consign settled questions to the past." The declaration might have been more explicit. A statement of the questions which the members of the Convention were willing to consider settled would have been useful. But none can doubt what they are. And with this resolution on record none can doubt that the Minnesota Democrats, in discarding "forms and theories which have lost their substance," repudiate opinions and purposes to which the New-York Democracy still obstinately cling.

The position assumed in this regard derives additional significance from the fate which attended an attempt to commit the Minnesota Democracy against the Fifteenth Amendment. The resolutions reported by Mr. CASSIDY to the recent Convention at Syracuse, and by that body unanimously adopted, echo the stale prejudices in opposition to the Amendment. The Democrats of Minnesota, wiser in their generation, voted down a proposition to express hostility to the Amendment on the ground—as explained in behalf of the Committee—that such a resolution "would be a dead weight on the Democratic Party." "With this resolution out of the platform," said one of the delegates, "they might be successful; with it in the platform, defeat was certain." So opposition to the Fifteenth Amendment was quietly consigned "to the past."

These incidents are not without a moral. They prove that the policy expounded by General ROSECRANS has strong and active supporters in the Democratic Party, and that while its Eastern magnates insist upon reviving exploded issues with every contest, the West will have no lot or part in the transaction. Out of a party thus divided good may some day come. Meanwhile, however, its chance of achieving any decisive victory cannot be great.

The Indian raid in Wyoming, reported this morning, was palpably only the reckless sortie of a single band, and need excite no fear of general hostilities. They mustered but 100 warriors, and these, in their sharp fight with Company D, Second Cavalry, were worsted, five Indians being killed and many wounded. Indeed, the probability is that the party, who seem to have been Ogallalah Sioux, were in search of Shoshones, with whom, as with the Pawnees, the Sioux are still in hostility. The other three instances reported of Indian outrage—stock stealing, attacking our outposts, and killing citizens—are probably the work of this same band. Taking the Summer as a whole—for the campaigning season will, in six weeks, be substantially over—it has passed with comparatively few Indian outrages. Isolated attacks and casual raids there certainly have been, but no Fetterman massacre. The Midwinter attack of CUSTER seems to have pretty thoroughly awed the red man, as a whole, and the Midsummer stroke of CARR clinched the nail which CUSTER drove. Besides, the disposition of the Government to deal fairly with the friendly, as well as severely with the hostile tribes, has had a good effect; the appointment of respectable agents and superintendents has also had a good effect; and, upon the whole, when Congress convenes, it will have a clearer field than ever before for settling a broad Indian policy.

We observe that what was once announced by some papers as "The Cherbourg Horror,"—meaning the reported mutiny on the Sabine,—is now more complacently styled by some of the same authorities "The Sabine Hoax." The change in title is easy; but the general tirade against the navy for its alleged tyranny, cannot be so easily compensated. "We might doubt the facts," said one of our contemporaries, "so badly are they given, were we not assured that such events are not impossible in the United States Navy, and that the discipline exacted by some—we trust not many—of its officers is such as to provoke mutiny and give to it a semblance of rough justice." And thereupon it fell to citing cases of other mutinies, all going to show that "there is something radically wrong in naval discipline." The facts being disproved, the generalizations from them become of little importance.

The prospect of cheap fuel for the Winter is improving. At the auction sale of Scranton coal yesterday there were 90,000 tons disposed of at prices which, as compared with the figures made at the August sale, showed a very gratifying fall in the market rates, stove having declined 45c.@53½c.; grate, 27½c.@50c.; egg, 20c.@35c.; lump, $1 03½@$1 45; steamboat, $1 17½@$1 45; and chestnut, 90c.@$1 02 per long ton of 2,240 lbs., deliverable at Elizabethport, N. J. The average price of stove coal at the sale was $7 09 per 2,240 lbs. Add the freight from Elizabethport to the City, and we should have the ton of 2,000 lbs., deliverable from yard, at about $7 50. The present retail price is, however, $8 50 per short ton. It is to be hoped that the dealers will promptly give their customers the benefit of the fall in the open market.

The Paraguayan Disaster.

The news from Lisbon apparently confirms the report of Paraguayan disaster which the previous advices from Rio Janeiro brought. The advance of Count D'EU seems to have resulted in driving LOPEZ to the interior with severe loss. If these later tidings are not exaggerated, the cause of LOPEZ has received a fatal blow.

The movements of the Allies, which seemed to be, and indeed were, unwarrantably sluggish for some months after the capture of Asuncion, have, since the advent of Count D'EU to the command, been unusually vigorous. Once cut loose from his river and railroad communications, the Brazilian commander has lost no time in driving the Dictator to the wall. Having forced successively the evacuation of Ascurra and Piribebui, Count D'EU seems to have pressed so closely upon LOPEZ that the latter was forced to give him battle at Curuguaity, which place he had previously entrenched. The Paraguayans were badly defeated here, as, indeed, having "robbed the cradle and the grave" for their army, they might well have been without dishonor. The blow was repeated three days later at Ignacion, where LOPEZ again turned at bay, and thence he is said to have fled, closely pursued by the Allies. The losses of the Paraguayans are probably somewhat exaggerated in the Brazilian account, as usual, but they are unquestionably severe. The abandonment of "all their steamers" is of little moment, in the new scene of struggle, to which LOPEZ has betaken himself, and which is not specially propitious for naval combat. But the loss of thirty-seven cannon is of more importance.

Moved by these successes, the Provisional Government at Asuncion has, it seems, declared LOPEZ an outlaw, and we may presume, therefore, that if the war is carried on, it will be with increased fury and cruelty on both sides. It is questionable whether a wiser move for the Allies would not be to grant LOPEZ such terms as he can in honor accept, and so put an end to this long and disastrous conflict. It can hardly be expected that LOPEZ will cease to fight while he lives, unless he is met with offers of peace such as befit a brave opponent.

The Labor Reform Convention which met at Worcester, Mass., on Tuesday, will not carry with it the sympathies of the State, unless the tone of its deliberations undergoes a change. Mr. S. P. CUMMINGS, of Danvers, opened the meeting by declaring that he was in favor of paying the national debt in greenbacks. The clergyman who was invited to offer prayer at first objected to do so, upon the ground that Mr. CUMMINGS' views were opposed to the interests of the nation. But the proceedings went on, and a series of resolutions was adopted. The fifth resolution protests against the exemption of bonds or securities from taxation, the eighth opposes "the introduction into this country of a servile race to degrade and cheapen labor," and the eleventh asserts that the recognition of the bondholders' claim to be paid in gold "is a clear repudiation of the national faith." These are the chief features in the programme of a "workingman's party." Seeing that the meeting was held in Massachusetts, we are not surprised to learn that great confusion and disorder characterized the proceedings. The workingmen of the State who identify themselves with this Convention can scarcely expect to increase their political influence.

AMUSEMENTS.

Musical.

"MARTHA" AT THE FRENCH THEATRE.

FLOTOW'S lively and melodious little opera was given last night, by the Parepa-Rosa troupe, to a crowded audience, who were quite taken by storm by the spirit and finish of the performance. The comic operas as sung by this company have been their most decided successes, and "Martha" is no exception to the rule. Careful stage management has well seconded the efforts of the singers and the orchestra, and the representations of "Fra Diavolo" and "Martha" at the French Theatre this week would do no discredit to any house in Europe or elsewhere in which English opera has been rendered. Mme. PAREPA-ROSA was in excellent voice last night, and did careful justice to the florid and mirthful music of Lady Harriet, while Mrs. SEGUIN sang that of the contralto, her companion, with delightful effect. Mr. CASTLE was smooth and agreeable in Lionel, Mr. CAMPBELL was most acceptable as Plunkett, Mr. SEGUIN threw much quaintness and humor into Tristan, and Mr. HALL contributed as much fun in the Sheriff as the situations allow. The Fair scene in the second act was really capital. It was well set; the accessories, including Punch, the dancing bears, the organ grinder and monkey, were all thoroughly good and characteristic of their kind. The bustling action and merriment proper to the scene were unflaggingly sustained, and if an objection could be made on the score of trifling anachronisms, the amusement afforded fairly condoned for the faults. Some of the concerted pieces were really exquisitely sung, and the satisfaction of the audience was heartily and frequently expressed. "Martha" is announced for repetition on Friday, the occasion being set apart for the benefit of Mme. PAREPA-ROSA.

Dramatic.

"LONDON ASSURANCE" AT THE FIFTH-AVENUE.

"London Assurance" was very well acted last evening at the Fifth-avenue Theatre, where a week devoted to the reproduction of standard modern comedies has thrown a strong light upon the resources of the establishment. Mr. E. L. DAVENPORT, aside from an imperfect acquaintance with the text, deserves nothing but praise for his rendering of Sir Harcourt Courtley, whom he embodied for the first time in this City. Mr. GEORGE CLARKE was an excellent Charles, and Mr. J. B. POLK an admirable representative of Dolly Spanker, for it has become so traditional an affair to make of Spanker a drivelling idiot, that we must be satisfied with a comical performance, for lack of an altogether unexaggerated one. Mr. W. DAVIDGE was an earnest and hearty Max Harkaway. Mr. JAMES LEWIS a most amusing Meddle, and Mr. D. H. HARKINS a Dazzle who only wanted a little of the dash we are entitled to look for in the interpreter of the part. Miss FANNY DAVENPORT was Lady Gay Spanker, and added to the good impression of her youth and beauty the effect of natural and vivacious acting. Miss MARIE LONGMORE as Grace brought to the interpretation of the character the flow of animal spirits which distinguished her performances in burlesque, and also the crudeness of voice and manner inherited from the same representations. Mrs. MARIE WILKINS acted Pert. Without further comment, let us note that the entertainment was thoroughly enjoyable. It will be repeated to-night and Saturday.

Announcements of the Day.

"Fra Diavolo" will be sung at the Brooklyn Academy of Music this evening by Miss ROSA HERSEE and the artistes of the Parepa-Rosa opera troupe.—The final performances of "Patrie" are now occurring at the Grand Opera House. "The Tempest" will be reproduced here on Monday, with Miss LUCILLE WESTERN as Miranda, Mr. J. H. TAYLOR as Prospero, and Miss LISA WEBER as Ariel. Mlle. RITA SANGALI will be the principal danseuse.—HERMANN occupies the Academy of Music to-night.

EUROPEAN NEWS BY MAIL.

AFFAIRS IN SPAIN.

General Sickles' Note—Excitement in Madrid—Press Views of the Situation—Actual Contents of the Mysterious Diplomatic Document.

From Our Own Correspondent.

MADRID, Wednesday, Sept. 15, 1869.

Though the excitement mentioned in my last has somewhat cooled down, it being of that nature called "too hot to last," there is still nothing talked about here but Cuba and the attitude of the United States. The Government are firm in their refusal to publish the communication which Major-General SICKLES has, in the name of his Government, addressed to them. The papers clamor loudly for its production, and as the Government make no sign, they run off into all sorts of wild speculation and give out versions of the message quite at variance with the truth. Thus an amount of bitterness has been created against the people and the Government of the United States which is quite uncalled for, and which has led to displays of Spanish braggadocio amusing from their puerility. According to some the insurrection had already been suppressed by the brave troops and volunteers under General CABALLERO DE RODAS, and the United States, galled and disappointed at this most unexpected result, has determined to reopen the struggle by taking part in it herself, and the note of General SICKLES was simply a formal intimation of this intention! Others don't go quite so far as to say that the insurrection was absolutely crushed, but that it was, "as good as crushed" when the States decided to interfere. Others, again, magnify the contemplated recognition of the Cubans as belligerents into the intention openly to assist them by active participation in the war. All sorts of abuse is showered upon General SICKLES and his countrymen. Reproaches of "Yankee perfidy" and "American treachery" are rife in the papers. General SICKLES is styled "that man whose presence among us is the sad omen for the interests of our country," and General GRANT is accused of hostile animus against Spain from the very fact of appointing him to this Embassy, which was done they say "because he had distinguished himself in his own country as a partisan of Cuban annexation."

Though differing widely in their manner of treating the note of General SICKLES, almost all the papers represent it as a direct menace, and, consequently, one at which Spanish pride revolts. Strong appeals to patriotism abound in these sheets, and they make urgent calls on the Government for activity in the dispatch of troops to Cuba. On Saturday last three steamers sailed from Barcelona, and within the present week others are to follow. By the end of the month there will have been 10,000 men dispatches, and during the first fortnight of October 14,000 more, making 24,000 in all. At least this is the statement which the Government makes of their "intentions," in response to the urgent demands of the Press. The arsenals are busy night and day in preparations. The Lopez Company have placed the whole of their magnificent fleet of steamers at the disposal of the Government for the conveyance of troops and stores. Up to last night nearly 100 medical men had volunteered to go out. A call is made for the Pacific Squadron to shift to Cuba, but respecting this the Imparcial says: "Some of our colleagues have made inquiries respecting the Spanish squadron in the Pacific. 'Would it not be better in Cuba?' No, in no manner. The squadron of the Pacific, at the moment when the United States threaten to recognize the Cuban insurrectionists as belligerents—conduct which is sure to be followed immediately by all, or the greater part of the Republics of South America—ought not to abandon those waters, where their presence will impose neutrality on those Governments, if any of them fail in their duty in that respect. But would not the squadron which goes wandering from port to port in the Mediterranean be better traversing the waters of Cuba? It could carry some 6,000 or 7,000 soldiers with great relief to our empty Treasury. Is it not a shameful thing that the naval forces we have already sent to Cuba are insufficient to impede the entrance of reinforcements for the rebels?"

The hint has been taken, and the Mediterranean fleet is ordered to Cartagena to prepare to cross the Atlantic.

The Saragossa, Ville de Madrid, Tetuan, Almanza and other frigates are shortly to set sail, and it is rumored will be under the special command of TOPETE himself. On the whole there is certainly a great parade of preparation, and an apparent determination to send out such a military force as will stamp out the insurrection on land, and such a naval force as will put down all attempts to assist the insurgents by the sea.

General SICKLES' note to the Spanish Government is, I may say, very long and very handsomely couched. He utters no menace, no threat, but calmly and dignifiedly, in the name of his countrymen, expresses their regrets at the continuance of the war in Cuba, and especially at the barbarous mode in which it is conducted. He protests, in the name of humanity, against the feet, both by the American and the European Press. He has removed the United States Legation to very handsome quarters in the Strada. He is on the best personal terms with the Regent, with PRIM and all the other Ministers, and in all his intercourse with them there has never yet been one unpleasant word. He has told them the United States are ready to proffer their good offices whenever the Spanish Government and the Cubans desire their mediation. But the time for that has not come yet.

General Sickles and Mr. Forbes—Their Attitude Toward the Spanish Government.

Madrid (Sept. 15) Correspondence London Times.

* * * The Madrid papers have been in a complete ferment ever since they learnt of the reception of the notes. Some of them badly abuse General SICKLES himself, who was sent here, they say, solely because he had distinguished himself at home as a partisan of Cuban annexation. He has become quite an object of popular curiosity and remark as he walks through the streets of Madrid on his crutches, minus a leg which he lost at Gettysburg, always accompanied by his military Aide-de-Camp, Major RAFAEL, who is minus an arm lost in the same battle. The General denies in the most emphatic manner the truth of the reports so industriously circulated respecting the idea of a purchase of the Island of Cuba or of his mission here being in any way, direct or indirect, to negotiate with the Spanish Government about it. He has never approached the Spanish Government upon any such proposal, nor received any instructions to do so. He has verbally to the Regent and the Government intimated the desire of the American people to see peace in Cuba, and hinted that when both or either side was tired of the shedding of blood and felt inclined to come to some understanding, the Government of the United States were ready and willing to proffer their friendly office between the colonists and the mother country, with a view, if possible, to an amicable and satisfactory settlement of the question. To this extent has he gone in his interviews with the present rulers of Spain, but no further. Not a word has escaped his lips as to a sale of the Island, or as to the United States guaranteeing the payment. I am in a position to state this to you as a fact, and, further, that the Mr. FORBES, whose visits to Madrid have been said to be in connection with the same business, is as innocent of it as General SICKLES is himself, though all sorts of accounts have been published of his visit to the Regent at La Granja, and of his intention to return here in October, when the Cortes are in session, to try to complete the "little negotiation." Mr. FORBES is a Boston merchant, having establishments in Manila and Hong Kong, and is without the least conection with Cuba. He is an old friend of Major-General SICKLES and General PRIM, and his visit here was purely of a private and friendly character.

Important Revenue Decisions—Wholesale Druggists to Pay Special Tax—The Steel Manufacturers and the Government.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has just decided on cases coming up from Philadelphia, that wholesale apothecaries and druggists doing business as such under a regular license, must cease to sell liquors in quantities exceeding one half pint at one time, or pay the special tax required of a retail liquor dealer. His decision also covers the case of sales of alcohol by such parties, who must sell in quantities less than five gallons at any one time, or pay the special tax required of a wholesale liquor dealer. These decisions reverse previous rulings, but are in strict accordance with the laws, and held to be nothing more than justice to regular liquor dealers, since this class of business paying Government for certain privileges is unquestionably entitled to its protection in the exercise of its privileges.

PROTECTION FOR STEEL ASKED FOR.

A delegation of steel manufacturers arrived here to-day from Pittsburg, Philadelphia and New-York for the purpose of calling the attention of the Secretary of the Treasury to the report of W. B. FARWELL, United States Treasury Agent in Europe, in which it is shown that gross undervaluations are practiced in the importation of steel to the serious injury of American manufacturers. They had an interview with Mr. BOUTWELL this morning, who heard their statement and promised the attention of his department to the matter. They also waited upon the President, from whom they asked and received a promise of a continuation of his efforts to reform the Civil Service, punish fraud, and secure an honest administration of the laws.

The Imprisonment of Dr. Simmons in Cuba.

Secretary FISH was visited at his residence in this City yesterday by Dr. ALBERT F. SIMMONS, accompanied by his counsel, Mr. JOHN W. GRATTAN, who had a consultation with him in reference to the Cuban question, and made a demand for the damages the doctor has sustained by the agents of the Spanish Government.

The Secretary of State said he could not give his attention to official affairs until his return to Washington. He treated the doctor with a great deal of consideration, acknowledging the receipt of his letter while in jail at Puerto Principe, and invited him to call and see him at Washington, assuring him that every facility in the power of the Government would be promptly granted to gain full and ample redress for all damages which he has sustained.

Dr. SIMMONS replied that his case was of such an aggravated nature that he not only wished to have it tested in reference to the points of law involved, but also at the same time to ascertain whether the United States Government intends or not to protect its citizens from insult and robbery by foreign Governments. Mr. FISH repeated his assurances that the matter should be fully investigated.

THE WAR IN PARAGUAY.

The Defeat and Flight of Lopez Confirmed—Capture of His Guns and Steamers—The Allies in Pursuit.

LISBON, Sept. 29.—The regular mail steamship from Rio Janeiro arrived at this port to-day, bringing advices from the besieging armies in Paraguay up to the 2d of August.

The news is highly important. On the 18th of that month the allied army attacked the forces of President LOPEZ, which were intrenched at Curuguaty. The Paraguayans were entirely defeated, losing one thousand killed and three hundred prisoners. Twelve cannon were also captured by the Allies. LOPEZ, with the remainder of his army, fled to Ignacion, a short distance away. On the 21st he was again attacked by the Allies and again defeated, losing in the engagement, twenty-five cannon. Count D'EU, the General commanding the Allies, at the last advices, was closely pursuing the fugitives. Owing to these victories the Paraguayans were compelled to abandon all their steamers. These subsequently fell into the hands of the Allies. Forty-four of the British subjects who had lately been held in confinment by LOPEZ were promptly liberated.

The Provisional Government at Asuncion had declared LOPEZ an outlaw.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Later advices have been received from the seat of war in South America. The news from Rio Janeiro is to the 7th inst., and fully confirms the flight of LOPEZ.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Times Paris correspondent asserts that there is but little hope of a compromise between Spain and the Cubans. The sentiments of both parties are heard here. The Spanish Government says in so many words: "Lay down your arms and send deputies to the Cortes. If you will be as Canada, we are willing; if you desire independence, we don't say 'no.' The matter may be arranged, but disarm. Spain's motto is: 'Nothing by Compulsion.'"

VIRGINIA.

The Power to Elect United States Senate—Opinion of Attorney-General Hoar.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 29.—The following correspondence on the Virginia Senatorial question is published:

HEADQUARTERS FIRST MILITARY DISTRICT, RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 24, 1869.

The Honorable Secretary of War, Washington, D. C.:

SIR: The question of electing Senators to the Congress of the United States by the Legislature which will assemble in this city on the 5th proximo, is one of great present interest in the State, and many applications have been made for a decision upon that point. The subject appears to be so free from difficulty that I have not hesitated to express the opinion unofficially that the election of Senators was authorized and necessary to complete the reconstruction, and was prescribed by the law of July 26, 1866, but that it was not proper for me to make a decision upon a question that addressed itself so directly to the discretion of the Legislature after it was organized. There are many, however, who are of the opinion that this action is in some way restrained by the opinion of the Attorney-General of Aug. 28, 1869, and I have the honor to request that the question whether the Legislature of this State is authorized to elect Senators of the United States at the session which commences on the 5th of next month, may be submitted to the Attorney-General for his opinion.

Very respectfully, Sir, your obedient servant,
(Signed) ED. R. S. CANBY,
Brevet Major-General, U. S. A., Commanding.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OFFICE, Sept. 25, 1869.

The President:

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of this date referring to me, for my opinion, a letter addressed to the Secretary of War by General CANBY, dated Sept. 24, 1869, which asks whether the Legislature of the State of Virginia is authorized to elect Senators of the United States at the session which commences on the 5th of next month, and desires that that question may be submitted to the Attorney-General for his opinion. The general views which I entertain of the functions of the Legislature of Virginia, elected in pursuance of the act of Congress of April 10, 1869, have been already fully indicated in an opinion transmitted to the Secretary of War, under date of Aug. 28, 1869. I came to the conclusion that the members of the Legislature were not required to take the oath referred to in section 9 of the statute of July 19, 1867, in order to qualify them to act as such members; that it was competent under the law for the Legislature to meet, organize and do whatever was required or allowed by the acts of Congress as preliminary to the State; but that it was not competent for them to undertake to enact laws, or otherwise to assume any of the functions of the government of the State, if organized, without taking the oath above referred to. Upon a careful consideration I am now of the opinion that the election of Senators, like the voting upon the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States, is a part of the action contemplated by Congress as preliminary to a restoration of the State to its full relation to the Government of the United States as one of the States of the Union. The Senators thus elected would have no power or authority until the Senate of the United States should have passed upon the validity of their action, and admitted them as members of that body. Under the act of April 10, 1869, the election of members of the House of Representatives was permitted and has taken place, and when Congress comes to act upon the whole question of the reconstruction of the State it would seem equally proper that members elected to both branches of the National Legislature should present themselves and be ready for admission to seats in the respective Houses. The election of Senators does not seem to me to transcend the action which comes within the limited and qualified purposes requisite to reconstruction, but rather to be essential to the completeness of that action, and I think that the Military Commander should not interfere with or prevent it.

Very respectfully,
(Signed,) E. R. HOAR, Attorney-General.

THE PACIFIC COAST.

The New Minister to China—Presents to Mr. Seward—Attack on Chinese by White Men.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.—The appointment of FREDERICK F. LOW to the Chinese Mission is received here with great favor. He did not seek the position, but has condinded to accept it. He entertains a liberal opinion on the subject of our relations with China, and has strong faith that the Chinese Government, under the influence of just treatment, comb ned with a steady moral pressure, will be induced to open China to American enterprise.

Hon. W. H. SEWARD received several valuable presents to-day from the citizens of San Francisco. Among them was a gold cigar case, a gold snuff box and a gold-headed cane—all specimens of California manufacture. The cane was presented by the California Pioneers at their hall, and was accompanied by a certificate of honorary membership. The cigar case was exquisitely wrought, and cost $1,500.

The Chinamen working on the Virginia City and Truckee Railroad were driven off to-day by a mob of white men. The Sheriff read the riot act, and measures have been taken for the protection of the Mongolians. The managers of the road have called on the Government for assistance.

Two of the Missing Boats Picked Up—One Still Unheard Of.

NEW-ORLEANS, Sept. 29.—Steamship Clinton, from Galveston, picked up, yesterday evening, near Ship Shoals, two boats, containing Captain MORRIL, the first mate and thirteen others from the steamer Trade Wind, which sunk on the 24th. The second mate's boat is still missing.

FIRES.

Churches Damaged in Philadelphia—Iron Works in Dighton, Mass., Destroyed—Warehouse and Elevator in Missouri Burned.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—The New Jerusalem Church, on Cherry-street, below Twenty-third, was damaged by fire this morning early.

The Church of United Brethren, in the Twentieth Ward, was also damaged by another fire, which burned a cabinet shop and damaged two dwellings.

FALL RIVER, Sept. 29.—The Dighton Rolling Mill and Nail Factory, at South Dighton, was entirely destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock this morning. The property is insured for only about one-third of its value.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—The warehouse and elevator of GEORGE W. SCHENEBLY, of Massville, was burned yesterday. Loss from $15,000 to $20,000; insured for $9,000 in Eastern offices.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 29.—The Galesburg fire, which was reported yesterday, was more serious than at first supposed. The loss will reach over $100,000, which is fully covered by insurance, mostly in Eastern companies.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 29.—A fire occurred this afternoon on Archer-avenue and Twenty-third-street, which destroyed a number of frame buildings. The loss is $30,000, on which there is but little insurance.

Fire on the Hudson River Railroad—Freight Cars Destroyed—Track Obstructed and Trains Delayed.

The through night freight train north on the Hudson River Railroad, on reaching Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth-streets, broke a coupling, and three cars loaded with petroleum were thrown from the track. The oil was fired by some accident, from the lamps of the train hands, and the destruction of the entire train seemed probable. The two engines at hand however, by rapidly pulling the cars up and down the track removed them all from danger, and the three cars, with their contents, were all that were destroyed. Their value, with that of the oil, was about $6,000.

The track was choked for three hours, seriously incommoding a very large number of passengers.

Queens County Agricultural Fair.

Yesterday morning the twenty-eighth annual exhibition of the Queens County Agricultural Society commenced on the Society's grounds at Mineola. The display is a very fine one. To-day Mr. A. T. STEWART will visit the Fair, arriving by a special train on the Long Island Railroad at 11 o'clock. The Fair continues for three days.

THE FRANKLIN EXPEDITION.

Captain Hall's Journey to the Arctic Regions.

The Fate of Sir John Franklin and His Men—Their Cruel Treatment by the Esquimaux—Interesting Account of Captain Hall's Sledge Journey to King William's Land—The Relics Found There.

The following letter, addressed by Captain C. F. HALL, the Arctic explorer, to Mr. HENRY GRINNELL, gives a graphic account of his recent expedition to King William's Land, and of the finding of fresh evidences of the fate of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN and his men:

REPULSE BAY, June 30, 1869.

Henry Grinnell:

DEAR SIR: This day I have returned from a sledge journey of ninety days to and from King William's Land. It was my purpose, and every preparation was made, to make this journey last season; but my attention then having been called to Melville Peninsula, in the vicinity of Fury and Hecla Straits, where native report had it that white men had been seen, I directed my expedition there by way of Am-i-toke, Oog-lik Isle, Ig-loo-lik, with the ardent hope and expectation of rescuing alive some of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN'S last companions. The result of this journey was the finding of a tenting place of a few white men and a stone pillar they had erected close by it at the bottom of Parry Bay, which is some fifty miles south of the western outlet of Fury and Hecla Straits, and the visiting of several places where white men and their traces had been seen by natives of Ig-loo-lik and vicinity in or about the years 1866-7. I also gained much information from the natives of Ig-loo-lik, North Oog-lik Isle, and thereabouts, that confirmed the report I had heard in the Winter of 1867-8, which I have already stated. And still further proofs of this report have been also obtained on my late visit to King William's Land. My sledge journey to the Straits of Fury and Hecla, and thence down to Parry Bay and back to Repulse Bay by the route already defined, consumed ninety-six days.

The result of my sledge journey to King William's Land may be summed up thus: None of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN'S companions ever reached or died on Montreal Island. It was late in July, 1848, that CROZIER and his party, of about forty or forty-five, passed down the west coast of King William's Land in the vicinity of Cape Herschell. The party was dragging two sledges on the sea-ice, which was nearly in its last stage of dissolution—one, a large sledge laden with an awning-covered boat, and the other, a small one, laden with provisions and camp material. Just before CROZIER and party arrived at Cape Herschell, they were met by four families of natives, and both parties went into camp near each other. Two Esquimaux men, who were of the native party, gave me much sad, but deeply interesting information. Some of it stirred my heart with sadness, intermingled with rage, for it was a confession that they, with their companions, did secretly and hastily abandon CROZIER and his party to suffer and die for need of fresh provisions, when, in truth, it was in the power of the natives to save every man alive. The next trace of CROZIER and his party is to be found in the skeleton which MCCLINTOCK discovered a little below, to the southward and eastward of Cape Herschell; this was never found by the natives. The next trace is a camping-place on the sea-shore of King William's Land, about three miles eastward of Pfeiffer's River, where two men died and received Christian burial. At this place fish bones were found by the natives, which showed them that CROZIER and his party had caught while there a species of fish excellent for food, with which the sea there abounds. The next trace of this party occurs some five or six miles eastward, on a long, low point of King William's Land, where one man died and was buried. Then about S. S. E., two and a half miles further, the next trace occurs on Todd's Inlet, where the remains of five men lie. The next certain trace of this party is on the west side of the inlet west of Point Richardson, on some low land that is an island or a part of the main land as the tide may be. Here the awning-covered boat and the remains of about thirty or thirty-five of CROZIER'S party were found by the native Poo-yet-ta, of whom Sir JOHN ROSS has given a description in the account of his voyage in the Victory, 1829-'34.

In the Spring of 1849, a large tent was found by some of the natives whom I saw, the floor of which was completely covered with the remains of white men. Close by were two graves. This tent was a little way inland from the head of Terror Bay.

In the Spring of 1861, when the snow was nearly all gone, an Esquimaux party, conducted by a native well known throughout the Northern regions, found two boats, with many skeletons in and about them. One of these boats had been previously found by MCCLINTOCK; the other was found lying from one-quarter to one-half mile distant, and must have been completely entombed in snow at the time MCCLINTOCK'S parties were there, or they most assuredly would have seen it. In and about this boat, besides the many skeletons alluded to, were found many relics, most of them similar in character to those MCCLINTOCK has enumerated as having been found in the boat he discovered. The native who conducted this native party in its search over King William's Land is the same individual who gave Dr. RAE the first information about white men having died to the westward of where he (Dr. RAE) then was, (Pelly Bay,) in the Spring of 1854. His name is IN-NOOK-FOO-ZHE-JOOK, and he is a native of Neitchille, a very great traveler, and very intelligent. He is, in fact, a walking history of the fate of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN'S expedition. This native I met when within one day's sledge journey of King William's Land—off Point Dryden—and after stopping a few days among his people, he accompanied me to the places I visited on and about King William's Land.

The same year that the Erebus and Terror were abandoned one of them consummated the Great Northwest Passage, having five men aboard. The evidence of the exact number is circumstantial. Everything about this Northwest Passage ship of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN'S expedition was in complete order; four boats were hanging high up at the ship's sides, and one was on the quarter deck; the vessel was in its Winter housing of sail or tent cloth. This vessel was found by the Ook-joo-lik natives near O'Reilly Island, lat. 68° 30' N., lon. 99° W., early in the Spring of 1849, it being frozen in the midst of a smooth and unbroken floe of ice of only one Winter's formation. From certain evidence I have gained both at Ig-loo-lik and King William's Land, there must have been a dog of the gray-hound species belonging to one or the other of the two ships. I only know this through native testimony. It is quite likely that some one in England can tell whether there was a dog on board either of the ships when Sir JOHN FRANKLIN left in 1845.

To complete the history of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN'S last expedition, one must spend a Summer on King William's Land with a considerable party, whose only business should be to make searches for records which beyond doubt lie buried on that island. I am certain from what I have heard the natives say, and from I saw myself, that little or nothing more can be gained by making searches there when the land is clothed in its Winter garb, for the Esquimaux have made search after search over all the coast of King William's Land, on either side, from its southern extreme up to Cape Felix, the northern point, for anything and everything that belonged to the companions of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN, and these searches have been made when the snow had nearly all disappeared from the land.

My sledge company from Repulse Bay to King William's Land consisted of eleven souls, all Esquimaux. Although they are as untamable as eagles by nature, yet by their aid alone I was enabled to reach points otherwise inaccessible, and when there to gain much important information relative to the fate of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN'S expedition. I tried hard to accomplish far more than I did, but not one of the company would, on any account whatever, consent to remain with me in that country and make a Summer search over that island, which, from information I had gained of the natives, I had reason to suppose would be rewarded by the discovery of the whole of the manuscript records that had accumulated in that great expedition, and been deposited in a vault a little way inland or eastward of Cape Victory. Knowing, as I now do, the character of the Esquimaux in that part of the country in which King William's Land is situated, I cannot wonder at nor blame the Repulse Bay natives for their refusal to remain there as I desired. It is quite probable that, had we remained as I wished, no one of us would ever have got out of the country alive. How could we expect, if we had got into straitened circumstances, that we should receive better treatment from the Esquimaux of that country than the 105 souls who were under the command of the heroic CROZIER, some time after landing on King William's Land? Could I and my party, with reasonable safety, have remained to make a Summer search on King William's Land, it is not only probable that we should have recovered the logs and journals of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN'S expedition, but have gathered up and entombed the remains of nearly 100 of his companions, for they lie about the places where the three boats have been found, and at the large camping place at the head of Terror Bay, and the three other places that I have already mentioned. In the Cove, west side of Point Richardson, however, nature herself has opened her bosom and given sepulture to the remains of the immortal heroes that died there. Wherever the Esquimaux have found the graves of FRANKLIN'S companions they have dug them open and robbed the dead, leaving them exposed to the ravages of wild beasts. On Todd's Island the remains of five men were not buried, but, after the savages had robbed them of every article that could be turned to any account for their use, their dogs were allowed to finish the disgusting work.

Wherever I found that Sir JOHN FRANKLIN'S companions had died I erected monuments, then fired salutes and waved the Star-Spangled Banner over them in memory and respect of the great and true discoverers of the Northwest Passage. I could have gathered great quantities—a very great variety—of relics of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN'S expedition, for they are now possessed by natives all over the Arctic regions that I visited or heard of—from Pond's Bay to Mackenzie River. As it was I had to be satisfied with taking upon our sledges about 125 pounds total weight of relics from natives about King William's Land. Some of those I will enumerate: 1. A portion of one side (several planks and ribs fast together) of a boat, clinker built and copper-fastened. This part of a boat is of the one found near the boat found by MCCLINTOCK'S party. 2. A small oak sledge runner, reduced from the sledge on which the boat rested. 3. Part of the mast of the Northwest Passage Ship. 4. Chronometer box, with its number, name of maker and the Queen's broad arrow engraved upon it. 5. Two long heavy sheets of copper, three and four inches wide, with counter-sunk holes for screw nails. On these sheets, as well as on most everything else that came from the Northwest Passage Ship, are numerous stamps of the Queen's broad arrow. 5. Mahogany writing-desk, elaborately finished and bound in brass. 6. Many pieces of silverplate—forks and spoons—bearing crests and initials of the owners. 7. Parts of watches. 8. Knives, and very many other things, all of which you, Mr. GRINNELL, and others interested in the fate of the Franklin expedition, will take a sad interest in inspecting on their arrival in the States.

I must now tell you of the heartrending, tragical part of my expedition before I conclude this rapid, and I must add, incomplete report, for after all it is but a drop in the bucket to giving you a full idea of the vast amount of interesting and important information I have gained of the natives about Repulse Bay, Ig-loo-lik, Pelly Bay, Neitchille, Great Fish, or Back River and King William's Land relative to the fate of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN'S expedition. In the Spring of 1865 I started from Repulse Bay on a dog-sledge journey to King William's Land. My company was entirely of natives, and on our getting about two hundred miles on our way we met a party of Pelly Bay natives who were fleeing from their country on account of "war" raging there. The effect on my company was that on no consideration could they be induced to proceed further, and therefore terrible as was the blow to my plans, I had to turn back, trusting that I could succeed in getting a small band of faithful white men, out of some whale-ships, if they should happily make into Repulse Bay. Not until the Fall of 1867 was I able to get the desired number of white men to accompany me, besides my Esquimaux interpreters—JOE and HANNAH—as an escort of defence, while making the long-delayed sledge journey to King William's Land, and even then, it was only at the very last moment—that is, while the whaling vessels were weighing anchors and starting for the States—that I was successful. The result of my taking seamen that neither I or their Captains knew much about, proved as many would expect. One of the men, FRANK LAILER, ever proved during the year I employed the party of five men, a most faithful, hard-working and energetic man, fulfilling every position in which I placed him with ability and honor. Two men of the five would, I am quite confident, have proved better men than they did, had they not been ill-advised. None of the men, except noble FRANK LAILER, ever accompanied me on any of my great sledge journeys. In the Fall of 1868, during a mutinous attack made upon me, when my faithful man was absent about seven miles distant on business, I was compelled, in self-defence, to call into requisition a revolver. COLEMAN, the leader, fell, and died in fifteen days. At once the rebellion ended, and one of the band came, and like a man acknowledged freely and truly that he and his companions were altogether the guilty ones, and hoped I would forgive him, which I did on the instant. I feel that had I not taken this last "dread alternative," my fate would have been quite as sorrowful as that of HENRY HUDSON.

PERSONAL.

Mr. GEORGE PEABODY sailed for England yesterday in the Scotia, as noticed elsewhere in our issue of this morning. There have been so many conflicting rumors in regard to the health of Mr. PEABODY, that we are glad to be able to state, by authority, that he certainly does not appear, on the whole, worse than when he arrived, early in June. He returns very weak; indeed his debility has been such that he has been obliged during the last three months to confine himself within doors, lying down for twenty hours or more of the twenty-four, and only going out when compelled to do so by important business. He has besides experienced an almost total loss of appetite. Still, there are encouraging symptoms in his case, inasmuch as his cough, which weakened him so much, has nearly left him, and he has lately commenced to gain in weight. It is hoped that a Winter residence in a warmer climate, even if it does not entirely restore him, may so far improve his health as to prolong his useful and happy life.

Large Sale of Coal.

The Delaware, Lackwanna and Western Railroad sold 90,000 tons of Scranton coal by auction at their office, corner William-street and Exchange-place, yesterday afternoon.

There were a large number of speculators in attendance, the bidding being very close and animated. The following prices were obtained, being slightly in advance of those received at the September sale last year:

Lump; 10,000 tons, $5 12½ to $5 25; steamboat, 15,000 tons, $5 to $5 07½; grate, 16,000 tons, $6 to $6 27½; egg, 10,000 tons, $6 60 to $6 65; stove, 27,000 tons, $6 95 to $7 22½; chestnut, 12,000 tons, $5 45 to $5 55.

The following were the average prices for September, 1868: Lump, $5 21½; steamboat, $5 50; grate, $6 10; egg, $6 54; stove, $6 85; chestnut, $6 58.

Since the last sale the prices have declined as follows: Lump, from $1 45 to $1 02½; steam, from $1 45 to $1 17½; grate, from 80c. to 27½c.; egg, from 35c. to 20c.; stove from 52½c. to 45c.; chestnut, from $1 02½ to 90c.

INCIDENTALS.

Hon. WILLIAM A. RICHARDSON, who has been Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and a probate Judge in Massachusetts, has, after several months' trial of both offices, concluded to resign the former. His salary as Judge is greater than that received as Assistant Secretary.

Speaking of Ex-Governor FREDERICK F. LOW, the newly-appointed Minister to China, the Hartford Courant says: "He is about 42 years of age, possibly 45, with a portly and robust figure, a pleasing and, indeed, handsome countenance, and a fine presence. His means are sufficient. On the Chinese question, in all its aspects, he will be just, humane, liberal and progressive."

A Washington correspondent tells this story: The evening after the first election of CHARLES SUMNER to the Senate THAD. STEVENS said to a Massachusetts man, who called upon him: "Who is this CHARLES SUMNER? I know nothing about him." "The greatest man in Massachusetts, excepting, perhaps, RALPH WALDO EMERSON," was the reply. Soon after CALEB CUSHING came into the room, and Mr. STEVENS put a similar inquiry to him. Mr. CUSHING replied: "CHARLES SUMNER is a man of the greatest mind in Massachusetts, excepting CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, who combines the grasp and energy of his grandfather with the learning and experience of his father."

Mr. E. M. CHAMBERLIN, who was nominated for Governor of Massachusetts by the Labor Convention, manages a temperance hotel in Charlestown for his father, who keeps another temperance hotel in Boston. He is about 30 years of age, has not yet risen to the dignity of having his name printed in the directory of either city, and nobody seems able to tell what peculiar claims he has to represent the workingmen of the Bay State.

Revenue Detective JAMES J. BROOKS, who was shot in Philadelphia on the 6th inst., has nearly recovered and expects to be able to resume his duties in a few weeks.

A Toronto paper says that Mr. JAMES GIBB, a Quebec merchant, who died on Saturday, bequeathed $100,000 to the different charities of that city, both Catholic and Protestant.

San Francisco incendiaries make use of an infernal machine, composed of two pieces of hardened clay, six inches in length and two in breadth, inclosing a small phial filled with powder, and having a fuse attached to it. The machine, except the fuse, is covered with cloth and twine, saturated with oil.

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, of Boston, have made arrangements to go into camp on the 4th of October in Portland, Me., for two days. This would seem to be a very harmless proceeding, but the venerable JOHN NEAL rushes into print to declare that the visit is only a pitiful contrivance, designed by Boston merchants to keep the good people of Portland away from the Railroad Convention in Oswego on the 6th prox.; and he embraces the opportunity loudly to inveigh against the cruel, bitter and shameless opposition of Boston to all attempts by "sturdy Portland" to advance its interests.

JOHN NEAL is in a tumult of rapture at the completion of the dry-dock in Portland, Me. He pronounces it "the largest (on the whole) and the best in the country;" speaks of the recent ceremony of inauguration—of consecration—and congratulates his fellow-citizens upon "the triumphant issue of as gallant an enterprise, all things considered, as Portland, the hot-bed of large and generous undertakings, ever entered upon; amounting of itself to another Declaration of Independence, and sure to make not only Boston, but all New-England and all down East, even Halifax, tributary" to them.

Orders were received at the Charlestown, Mass., Navy-yard on Saturday last, to get the iron-clad Terror ready for sea within ten days.

Six thousand dollars worth of wigs and braided hair was stolen on Sunday night from a store in Cincinnati. The proprietors lost their entire stock, and have no trace of the thieves.

The banks in New-Orleans are taking measures to establish a clearing-house.

Hon. HORACE GREELEY wrote to some gentlemen in Lynchburg on the 17th inst. that they were welcome to use his name in any way to promote the renovation and prosperity of Virginia. This was before he was nominated for the United States Senate.

Rev. A. A. MINER, D. D., has been chosen President of the Massachusetts State Temperance Alliance, in place of WILLIAM B. SPOONER, declined. Dr. MINER is the leader of those who oppose the exemption of cider from the provisions of the Constabulary law, and his selection shows that they have lost none of their power in the Alliance. Small beer will thus probably continue to be the fashionable drink in Boston.

SALE OF THE UNITED STATES ARMORY AND OTHER GROUNDS AT HARPER'S FERRY, WEST VA., AND VICINITY.
ORDNANCE OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, Sept. 25, 1869.
In pursuance of the act approved Dec. 15, 1868, and by direction of the Secretary of War, the property of the United States at Harper's Ferry, West Va., and vicinity, will be sold by public auction, on TUESDAY, the 30th day of November, 1869, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M. and continuing from day to day until all is sold.
The value of this property for manufacturing purposes is too well known to render it necessary to describe it herein, but a description of the same is being prepared, and will be sent to persons who may wish it, as soon as it is printed, upon their applying by letter to this office.
The property will be sold in lots. The first will include Armory, Musket Factory, embracing a strip of land running to the western boundary, on the Potomac, the Armory Canal, and water power of the river. The walls of two large buildings are standing on this ground, and the foundations of several others; and the water wheels, with gearing, and the flumes are in almost perfect order. Three of them are turbines, of the most approved kind, and the others are mostly cast iron with wooden buckets.
The second will be the site of the Rifle Factory and water power on the Shenandoah, the buildings upon which have been destroyed, but the canal is in good order.
The third will be the Shenandoah Ferry, with a tract of 68 acres of land on the south, and a lot on the Harper's Ferry shore opposite.
The fourth will be the perpetual right to cut and remove wood from a tract of 1,366 acres mountain land across the Shenandoah.
The fifth will be the right to dig iron ore from a tract of about 1,400 acres of land known as Friend's Ore Bank, acquired by deed from Henry Lee and others.
The remainder, consisting of houses and lots in the town, will be sold lot by lot.
The Government will convey to the purchasers, after payment shall have been made in full, all its right and title to the property, which is believed to be perfect in every case.
The terms of sale, prescribed by law, are a credit of one and two years, the purchasers to give bond and security for the payment of the purchase money; and these terms must be complied with within ten days after the sale.
A map, showing the metes and bounds of the Harper's Ferry property, will be exhibited at the time of sale.
The Government reserves the right to withdraw any or all lots offered, if the bids are not satisfactory.
A. B. DYER,
Brevet Major-General, Chief Ordnance.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENTS.
Persons who purchased lots in 1853, and have not fully paid for them, are notified that if they pay what is due before the day of sale, the lots will be deeded to them, otherwise they will be resold.
A. B. DYER,
Brevet Major-General, Chief Ordnance.

FINANCIAL.

The First Mortgage Bonds
OF THE UNION PACIFIC
RAILROAD CO.
INTEREST 6 PER CENT. IN GOLD.

The Union Pacific Railroad has been in successful operation since May 10, and it is pronounced, by the thousands who have passed over it, to be in all respects as safe and well built as any railroad in the country. By the Pullman Palace Cars, the journey is not only made without danger, but without unusual fatigue. The fears that many have expressed in relation to the perils of the overland trip are removed by experience, and the travel is steadily increasing.
The earnings of the road since its opening are officially stated by the Company as follows:

From May 10 to May 31	$391,420 12
From June 1 to June 30	704,672 29
From July 1 to July 31	623,559 96

Notwithstanding the rates for passengers and freight have been largely reduced, the earnings for August will be at about the same average. They will be published as soon as full returns are received. The earnings, as stated above, are at an average of about EIGHT MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR,
Which will be steadily augmented by the development of the Pacific Coast, by settlement along the line, and by the natural increase of traffic.
The First Mortgage Bonds of the Company amount to $33,514,000, and the interest liability to $1,728,960 gold, or about $4,234,096 in currency. It will be noticed that the present earnings provide an ample fund for the payment of this interest and leave a large surplus. We are also satisfied that at present market rates, these bonds are a very desirable investment, and that they will advance in price as soon as the facts concerning the business and condition of the Company are generally understood.

THE LAND GRANT BONDS
To the amount of Ten Million Dollars, were issued to obtain means to finish the road, and are secured by A FIRST MORTGAGE
Upon the entire Land Grant of the Company, amounting to 12,000,000 acres. Three million acres of this land in the Platte Valley, in Nebraska, are admitted to be equal to any in the West. The sales of land were opened in Omaha July 27, and 40,000 acres were sold during a month thereafter, at an average price of over $5 per acre. While a part of the remainder of the land is of little value for agricultural purposes, there is another part from which a considerable sum will be realized. The value of the Land Grant is largely enhanced by the extensive coal mines, which are now being worked for the supply of the surrounding country, as well as for the railroad, and by other valuable mineral deposits, especially of copper.
THE LAND GRANT BONDS ARE RECEIVED in payment for all the Company's lands, at par, and the demand from actual settlers will give them a certain market. They run twenty years, and pay seven per cent. interest in currency.
Although the Company have disposed of all their bonds, yet as they are offered in market, we continue to fill orders at the current rates.
We have no hesitation in recommending both the First Mortgage and the Land Grant Bonds as a very valuable and perfectly safe investment.

The Republican State Convention at Syracuse.

Its Proceedings Marked by Unanimity and Enthusiasm.

Speech of Hon. John A. Griswold, the President.

The Platform Adopted Without Debate.

Almost Unanimous Nomination of a State Ticket.

THE CONVENTION.

Harmonious Action of the Delegations—Unanimity in the Nominations—Enthusiastic Adoption of Platform—Expeditious Transaction of the Business—The Adjournment.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 29.—The Republican State Convention met here at noon to-day, held two sessions, and finished its business before 8 P. M. The proceedings were harmonious, and the ticket nominated gives entire satisfaction to every member of the Convention, and cannot but be acceptable to Republicans throughout the State. The nomination of GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS to head the ticket was made by acclamation and with unbounded applause. Much regret was felt at the announcement that General SIGEL felt constrained to decline a place on the ticket on account of ill health, as the Convention were on the eve of nominating him for State Engineer by acclamation. The only position for which there was any contest was that of State Prison Inspector, and in this respect, and this only, the proceedings resembled those of the Democratic Convention a few days ago.

The resolutions were received with great enthusiasm, and adopted unanimously and without debate. That relating to the payment of the public debt in coin and opposing all forms of repudiation was received with the hearty applause that might have been expected from a Republican body, or any other body of honest and honorable men. The resolution relating to Cuba also met the unanimous approval of the Convention, and indicated a readiness to support the Administration in according belligerent rights to the Cubans as soon as it may be deemed expedient. The resolution opposing the appropriation of public money for the support of sectarian schools was indorsed with hearty and prolonged applause, exceeding that which was bestowed on any other portions of the platform. A brief and somewhat excited discussion occurred on the attempt of Senator O'DONNELL to insert an additional plank touching the liquor question, but a large majority of the delegates deemed it inexpedient and out of place to meddle with the subject in a Republican Convention, and the resolution was finally laid on the table.

In like manner the new Constitution was passed over without either approval or objection on all questions involving Republican principles, or properly coming within the scope of a political convention. The resolutions are bold and outspoken, and were received with a hearty approval, and with that unanimity and enthusiasm which characterized all the Convention proceedings, and betokened confidence in the success of the ticket at the coming election.

Proceedings of the Convention—The Platform and the Ticket.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 29.—The Convention was called to order at 12 o'clock by Hon. HAMILTON HARRIS, Chairman of the State Central Committee, when Mr. FERRIS nominated Hon. DEWITT C. LITTLEJOHN for temporary Chairman, which was carried, and Messrs. JAMES TAYLOR, of New-York, and Mr. FERRIS conducted Mr. LITTLEJOHN to the chair. On taking the chair, Mr. LITTLEJOHN briefly addressed the Convention, saying the assemblage of such a large body of delegates was an earnest that their power would give the State to the Republican Party, to whom it rightfully belongs.

On motion of Mr. NEWTON, of Monroe, Messrs. HUSTED, of Westchester, and UNDERHILL, of Chautauqua, were made Secretaries. The list of delegates was then called, together with the names of the contestants from Cattaraugus and Kings Counties. When the County of New-York was called Mr. MADDEN, of Orange County, from the Committee appointed by the last State Convention to harmonize the differences in New-York, submitted a report embracing a list of delegates jointly agreed upon by the different sections, which report was received with applause.

On motion, both delegations from Kings County were admitted to seats, but only one delegation's vote to be cast.

On motion of Mr. PIERREPONT, a Committee on Resolutions, consisting of two delegates from each Judicial District, was directed to be appointed by the Chair.

On motion of Mr. E. DELAFIELD SMITH, who announced, amid applause, the consolidation of the New-York City delegates, the Chair was directed to appoint a similar Committee on Contested Seats.

On motion of Mr. SELKREG, a similar Committee was ordered to report permanent officers of the Convention.

On motion of Mr. CHARLES S. SPENCER, the Committee was directed to select Hon. JOHN A. GRISWOLD, of Rensselaer County, for permanent President.

The Chair announced the following Committee on Resolutions:

First District—Edward T. Pierrepont, H. D. Labau. Second District—Chauncey M. Depew, E. S. Sanderson. Third District—Charles E. Smith, Wm. H. Tobey. Fourth District—S. P. Remington, Horace E. Smith. Fifth District—R. U. Sherman, John O'Donnell. Sixth District—W. W. Campbell, Giles Hotchkiss. Seventh District—Edward M. Smith, Charles H. Thompson. Eighth District—George W. Bull, H. C. Lake.

The Convention then took a recess till 3 P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 29.—The Convention reassembled at 3 P. M. Mr. SELKREG, from the Committee on Permanent Organization, reported as follows:

President—Hon. JOHN A. GRISWOLD, of Rensselaer.

Vice-Presidents.—First District—Thos. Murphy and Wm. F. Ashman. Second District—E. L. Sanderson and H. W. Thurston. Third District—Minard Hardee and Thad. Hart. Fourth District—A. H. Andrews and John Hammond. Fifth District—Webster R. Chamberlain and John O'Donnell. Sixth District—Wm. T. Post and J. I. Hendryx. Seventh District—Daniel Lanning and D. R. Barton. Eighth District—C. V. B. Barse and Wm. McKennan.

Secretaries—Two from each Judicial District.

Mr. GRISWOLD on coming on the platform was enthusiastically greeted, the cheers continuing as he took his stand in front of the tribune. He then proceeded to address the Convention as follows:

SPEECH OF MR. GRISWOLD.

FELLOW REPUBLICANS OF THE STATE OF NEW-YORK: I find myself once more the recipient of your kind favor. I cannot realize the feeling, as I look around upon this audience and see the familiar faces, and while your kind greeting comes from you to me on this occasion, I cannot, I say, resist the feeling that I am indeed in the house of my friends. [Applause.] One year ago, you did me the honor to select me as your standard bearer in the State, and on that occasion while we were defeated, not by the honest expression of the ballot, but by a degree of perjury, and corruption, and fraud, that saddened every true lover of his country and that leads him to wonder when these things will end. On this subject the question arises, whether the great State of New-York is to be governed by the majority of those who have a right to express and direct its interests, or whether frauds, the most stupendous ever perpetrated upon a people, shall override and render nugatory the expression of the intelligent majority of the people of the State. For my own part, I have faith that in some way or other, not yet pointed out, this great evil will be averted, and the time shall come when the people whose right it is to rule shall rule and sway for the good of all the destinies of this State. [Applause.] We have heard, with special satisfaction, that our friends in the City of New-York have resolved hereafter that, instead of spending and exhausting their energies in combating with each other—instead or confining themselves to mere family quarrels and internal disturbances—have determined to put forth their best energies and efforts to fight the common enemy, [applause,] and I have full faith that when our Republican friends in the great Metropolis shall thus properly direct their energies to the common good, they will become an element of success in connection with their brethren of the rural districts of the State. [Applause.] I need not say to you, gentlemen, how thoroughly I appreciate this evidence of your confidence in selecting me as your presiding officer on this occasion—an honor to be appreciated by any man; and I beg to assure you that I regard it as another evidence of the kind partiality which he herish to-day, and which I shall cherish forever hereafter. [Applause.] The Republicans of the State of New-York meet in convention with no new platform; the banner which is unfurled to the breeze to-day bears no new device. The pathway of the Republican Party has been so marked and so well defined that no man can mistake its direction or the goal to which it leads. [Applause.] We have been met in years past at every point with denunciation and misrepresentation, but the intelligent people of this country have put faith in the Republican Party, and have placed its leaders in positions of power and control, and it behooves the Republicans of the State, and Republicans everywhere, throughout the length and breadth of the land, so to conduct themselves that hereafter, as in times past, they shall deserve to receive and shall continue to receive the confidence of all the intelligent classes of the country. [Applause.] When the Southern rank of the Democratic Party raised the standard of rebellion the Republicans of the land stood forth in solid phalanx in defence of the Government and in support and preservation of the Union. [Applause.] I need not be reminded here, fellow-Republicans, that there were Democrats who were patriotic and deeply attached to this country and its Government, and who deserved to be numbered as among its foremost defenders; but I say, without fear of contradiction, that the representative men of the Democratic Party regarded the war, which they attributed as the result of Radical rule, as unconstitutional, while, as that war waged, it became necessary for the credit of the country to be sustained, that our soldiers in the field should be paid, and that our sick and wounded in the hospitals should be cared for and fed. These same representative men of the Democratic Party and Democratic organs throughout the North told the people that the obligations of the Government were worthless, and that bankruptcy and ruin would be the result of the war. And when the war at last was over, and we took from the ranks of the army the man who by his skill and gallantry in the field, and by his moderation and prudence and wisdom in civil life had secured to himself the appreciation and confidence and the faith of the American people, the same Democratic organs, and the representatives of the Democratic Party accused us of endeavoring to establish an oligarchy, and to set up a military despotism in the land. And now, to-day, when the war has such been ended, and when the able administration of General GRANT and his Cabinet, [great applause,] and when it has been shown to the world that we could not only sustain ourselves during the terrible conflict of battle, but when the conflict was past, the heart-burnings and the animosities which war engendered could be fully removed, and the people relieved from any burdens or oppressions in the way of taxation—even now we are assailed and accused of being enemies of the people, and the cry of taxation and radicalism raised against us. When the edict went forth throughout the land that there should be no more slavery in our midst, but that every man on its broad surface, every man gathered around the roof-tree of the nation, should have equal rights and privileges, civil and political, when that announcement went forth to the world, that four millions of human beings were to be forever released from all and every condition of slavery and servitude, and to be from thenceforth free men and free women, we, the Republican Party, were again denounced by our opponents, the leading Democrats and the leading Democratic organs, as doing an unconstitutional and radical thing, and now I, for one, while I can point to four millions of human beings raised from the condition of abject slavery to unconditional freedom, and while I can point to the achievements of soldiers in the field, whose every battle tended to preserve the Government; and when I see, after the close of the war, the national credit sustained, and the Government determined, and the people sustaining it therein to pay the obligations according to the true intent and spirit of the contract,—I say when I see all these things, if I am to be told that these are the evidences of radicalism, for one I am willing, and shall be proud, to have my name written in letters of light that shall never fade, as among the first and foremost of Radicals. [Great applause.] Fellow-citizens, I am aware that the same interest cannot be thrown around a convention of this kind—a State Convention—as if our proceedings here were to have a direct national bearing; but when we remember that the Government of this great State of New-York—its Judiciary, its Legislature, its internal improvements, and all our great interests are concerned in our proceedings, and the results at which we shall arrive, I feel that I need not remind you, or any Republican in this audience, or in the State, of the fact that the campaign now pending can hardly be over-estimated in its importance as bearing directly on matters the most vital to the State; and, again, I need not remind you, my friends, of the great importance of the coming election. Not only should the expression which goes forth from this Convention be in harmony with those principles which we have heretofore adhered to, but the individuals selected by you to represent the party, and to carry out the laws which may be enacted, should receive in your selection of them the most careful scrutiny and attention, for the people of this country have a right to expect at your hands, upon this occasion, and upon every occasion, that the individuals selected by you for positions of honor, trust and responsibility, should be worthy of the confidence of the people, and that there should be no man placed in nomination here to-day around whom attaches the slightest suspicion. [Applause.] Your candidates for office should be men commanding at once the respect and confidence of the entire people. There are men who as a matter of course always gather around a triumphant party; but all men of questionable position, of questionable integrity; all such should be set aside by you and none but the very best men that can be selected from the ranks of the Republican Party in this great State should be put forth, not only as your candidates but as worthy candidates for public favor and public support. [Applause.] It is impossible that any great party could be entirely exempt from members of it unworthy of all claims of alliance with it. Such men gather around a party standard as barnacles cling to the hull of the soundest and trustiest ship that ever plowed the ocean. So even camp followers are ever ready to avail themselves of any advantage that presents itself in the pathway of a patriotic and triumphant army. But these barnacles and camp followers should be stigmatized, not as members of the party in good faith and standing, but as mere hangers-on who fastened themselves to the organization for their own individual interest and personal motives. [Cheers.] We have no central organization in the great Metropolis from which emanates orders to be obeyed by deluded and infatuated followers, and around whom gathers crowds of voters. We have no sources of supplies gathered from corporation jobs and rents collected from unwilling tax-payers. The Republicans are only prompted to act with activity and zeal from a sense of duty. Hence the greater necessity not only of presenting measures deserving of support, but of selecting for the carrying out of these measures such men only as commend themselves to the confidence of the people. The two great objects yet to be accomplished for carrying out to final completion the plans for restoration and reconstruction, and of placing the nation once more on the high road of prosperity and strength, not only for to-day, but for its coming and encouraging future, is, first, the engrafting upon our Constitution that provision which secures to every man, no matter of what race, color or condition, equal civil and political rights; and, second, the funding of our national obligations, as proposed by the present able Secretary of the Treasury so that taxation on the people will no longer be felt as a burden on their industry and resources. [Applause.] Fellow-Republicans nothing further need be said by me to you. I feel that I have no right, even if I had the disposition, to detain you longer. We all understand our duty, and my belief is that if the whole Republican Party of this State, if every man in the coming campaign is imbued with a proper sense of his responsibility, and puts forth the efforts which underlie and are embraced within the scope of the Republican Party, that the great State of New-York will be added, as she deserves to be added, to that catalogue of States that stand forth the advocates and adherents of Republican principles and Republican justice and truth. [Great applause.]

The Committee on Contested Seats reported on the Eighth District, Kings County, that HENRY S. BELLOWS, DANIEL LYSTER and GEO. C. BENNET be admitted as regular delegates. On the Ninth District, that Hon. JOHN OAKLY, JOHN L. GUISCHARD and A. G. WILLIAMS be admitted as regular delegates. On the Second District, Cattaraugus, that Hon. ALBERT J. DOW, CONSTANT B. ALLEN and E. CURTISS be admitted as the regular delegates; also, that the excluded delegates be admitted to seats without the right to vote. The report was agreed to.

Ex-Senator MADDEN, from the committee appointed at the last State Convention to harmonize the party in New-York City, presented a report (already published) which was adopted with acclamation, and, on motion of General COCHRANE, a resolution was adopted that the new organization in New-York, provided for in the report, be declared the regular organization of that City.

Judge PIERREPONT, from the Committee on Resolutions, presented the following resolutions:

The Republicans of New-York, in Convention assembled, report to the people and declare the following principles:

Resolved, That the public debt, both principal and interest, shall be paid in coin as the same matured; and that repudiation of any part thereof, either directly or indirectly, or by any device or subterfuge, would bring dishonor upon the nation, and demoralization and disaster upon the people.

Resolved, That taxation ought to be equal and simple, and reduced as little burdensome to the citizen as the nature of the case will possibly allow.

Resolved, That the Government is bound by the most sacred obligation to protect its citizens, whether native or foreign born, wherever they may go.

Resolved, That every American citizen, whether naturalized or native, should have an equal right to the suffrage without regard to nation, race or religion.

Resolved, That the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, as proposed, ought to be adopted.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with all people everywhere who are downtrodden and oppressed by a privileged class or by unjust rule.

Resolved, That the great success and prosperity of our Government under the guidance of Divine Providence, imposes upon us duties toward our Cuban neighbors who, imitating the example of our fathers, are struggling for liberty against an arbitrary and oppressive Government in which they are allowed no representation and in whose administration they have no share; that whenever the facts in possession of our Government will justify the recognition of Cuban belligerency we shall heartily approve such recognition, and pledge our hearty support to any action on the part of the Government tending to the final annexation of Cuba, whenever she shall have achieved her independence and her people desire such action.

Resolved, That we heartily congratulate our countrymen, of all parties, on the peace, order and security almost universally realized under the wise, firm, moderate and frugal rule of President GRANT and his chosen counsellors; and we point with pride to the activity and prosperity of our national industry, to our abundant revenue, restored credit, and rapidly diminishing public debt, as demonstrations of the patriotic wisdom of the people evinced in their latest choice of President and Vice-President.

Resolved, That the maintenance of our system of public education, and of common schools, is essential to the preservation of a Republican Government and to the full development of intelligence and civilization; and that we are opposed to every attempt on the part of our State Legislature to appropriate any money of the people to the support of sectarian schools, or the diversion of the school funds to the maintenance of any sectarian institution.

Resolved, That the Republican Party is now, as it ever has been, the true friend of the canals of the State, and we believe that it is the true policy so to increase the facilities for the navigation thereof as to insure to all connected therewith a sure and speedy transmission of property, and, with a consequent increased business, warrant a reduction of tolls to a point which shall simply secure their safe navigation, defray the cost of their proper maintenance, and insure the speedy extinguishment of the canal debt.

Resolved, That we request the next Legislature to pass laws which will secure the right of every legal voter, whether native or naturalized, against invasion and overthrow by such frauds as deprived GRANT and COLFAX of the electoral vote of this State, and JOHN A. GRISWOLD, and the ticket upon the same State ticket, of the offices to which they were fairly elected.

Mr. JOHN O'DONNELL moved to recommit the resolutions with instructions to insert the following:

Resolved, That as the sale of intoxicating liquors is recognized by the laws of civilized countries, as well as by both political parties in this State, as a proper subject of legislative restraint, and as there is a diversity of opinion in the Republican Party as to the extent to which legal restraint ought to be carried, and as the present State law, outside of New-York City, requires the petition of twenty-five freeholders as a condition of license, that whenever a majority of the legal voters of any town shall remonstrate against license no license ought to be granted until a similar majority petition therefor, and that this is in harmony with the great doctrine of the right of the majority to rule.

Mr. BULL moved that the question be taken first on the resolutions as reported.

Mr. COCHRANE moved the previous question on this motion.

Mr. BULL's motion was then passed, and the resolutions were adopted.

Calls being made for General Sigel's nomination, Judge Fithian called upon the Convention to act with discretion. He knew the General, and he was confident that if he was nominated he would not accept.
